MORE ATTACKS FEARED

Japs Told By Own Radio That U. S. Has Prepared To Blast Homeland.

(By International News Service)

New bombing assaults by American aircraft, including Flying Fortresses and Liberators, on the islands of Japan were reported today by Tokyo radio.

A communique of the Japanese imperial high command said that American warplanes flying from bases in the Aleutians made a second attack on the northern districts of the Kurile islands where the Paramushiru naval and air base is located.

The Exchange Telegraph company quoted a broadcast of a communique stating that several localities in the Tsu Shima island area between Korea (chosen) and Honshu, principal island of the Japanese archipelago, had been attacked.

The dispatch by Exchange was received shortly after Reuter news agency monitors and the federal communications commission recorded the Jap announcement of the new attack on the Kuriles.

The Kuriles, northernmost of the Japanese islands, also are known as the Chisima islands. Although there may have been some confusion over the similarity in sound between Chisima and Tsu Shima, the Exchange report located the position as between Korea and Honshu.

Reports of the new aerial assaults on the Jap island were not confirmed immediately in Washington or other Allied quarters.

First Jap reports said the American raiders were driven off by anti-aircraft batteries and a later announcement claimed that three of the American bombers were shot down by interceptors.

Announcement of the Kuriles assault prompted the Tokyo radio

SICK, PAROLED

OSR Inmate, Victim of T. B., Released By Governor.

Robert Lattimore, 19, who was sentenced to the Mansfield Reformatory last January, has been granted an imminent danger of death parole by Governor John W. Bricker, according to Associated Press dispatches to The News-Journal.

Lattimore has been in the institution hospital since April 28, suffering from tuberculosis. Officials said that the disease was in an advanced stage when he was admitted to the hospital.

Lattimore was sentenced to one to 15 years from Cuyahoga county for burglary and larceny. If he recovers, he must return and serve the sentence.

Officials at the reformatory said that they had not received word of the parole this morning.

Coal Dealers Told They'll Get, 90 Per Cent of 42 Supply.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Secretary of Interior Ickes said today that as a result of production losses due to work stoppages coal dealers will be limited to 90 per cent of "last year's requirements" of anthracite.

The solid fuels administrator said work stoppages had resulted in a loss thus far this year of 3,500,000 tons of hard coal and that "we are going to have trouble to supply the demand."

Presence of Britain's chief of combined operations, Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten at Prime Minister Winston Churchill's conferences in Canada, suggests that one of the important purposes of the talks is to arrange final details of forthcoming invasion of Europe from British bases, now largely occupied by Canadian troops. Men of combined operations are popularly known as Commandos.

OPEN DRIVE TO MAKE COUNCIL OK PAY BOOST

Employes' Committees Plan For Open Meeting to Force Reconsideration of Bid.

Aroused by city council's failure to act on their request for pay increases, city employes were reorganizing their forces today in preparation for a new campaign for more pay to meet increased living costs.

Meeting this morning, members of the police and fire department committees on salaries decided to stage an open meeting to which representatives of all city departments, labor organizations, and others interested in the pay question will be invited, said Fire Capt. Frank Stahl, chairman of the joint police-firemen committee.

"Council slammed the door in our faces, but we think we have a just cause and we're not going to drop it," Stahl said.

The city workers' next move in their attempt to get more pay will be mapped at the open meeting which will be held within the next few days, he added.

"As irritating to city employes as council's failure to grant the raises was the closed council meeting at which the salary increase issue was passed up until 1944.

Police and firemen contend that council told them their committee would be asked to sit in on the salary discussion with council and that council's action would be reported immediately to the committee.

Instead, council met in closed session Tuesday night following a special meeting and seven of the nine councilmen discussed the salary raises for more than two hours. Yesterday morning Councilman C. N. Shultz, chairman of the special committee studying the pay boost request, issued a brief statement which said that council had decided to defer any

U. S., BRITISH STAFFS CONFER

Lay Groundwork For Meeting of Churchill, Roosevelt at Quebec Citadel.

(By United Press)

QUEBEC, Que., Military staffs of the United States, Great Britain and Canada today prepared the groundwork for the sixth meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill which will be held in Quebec's ancient and historic citadel at an undisclosed time in the immediate future.

Churchill, accompanied by his daughter, Mary, left here late yesterday by special train. Rules of censorship prohibited publication of his destination.

The official announcement issued yesterday afternoon that Mr. Roosevelt would come here, did not indicate when he would arrive. Meanwhile, preparations for the conference were reportable and they indicated the military nature of the subjects which will occupy the leaders of the two great English speaking nations.

Jail Parents Who Told Police Girl Had Left Home

The parents of a 17-year-old Mansfield girl who was reported missing from home Monday were jailed today by police as the result of their investigation into the reason why the girl left home.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said a morals charge would be filed against the girl's stepfather whom she accused of improper conduct over a six-year period.

The mother was to be questioned further today before authorities decide what to do with her case.

The girl and her 15-year-old aunt, both reported missing Monday by the older girl's mother, showed up at police headquarters Monday afternoon to report they had stayed overnight with relatives in the city.

When officers questioned them, they said conditions at home had become so unpleasant for the older girl that she decided to leave.

The parents, said to have come to Mansfield recently from Nelsonville, O., were taken into custody last night.

Newspapers Are Told Further Newsprint Slash Due.

NEW YORK —(ANS)— Newspapers which already have dropped advertising or features to adequately present the news and still comply with reduced newsprint orders, today had more bad news.

Rep. Lyle H. Boren (D) of Okla., who heads the house subcommittee on brand names and newsprint, warned today that a further cut in newsprint may be necessary in October, predicting a shortage of one third of the basic level for 1944.

Committee members flayed government agencies, however, for their extravagant use of paper in "useless questionnaires."

Rep. C. A. Wolverton, (R) of N. J., said: "The government should practice what it preaches. It should be just as careful as they expect newspapers and magazines to be."

Closing Arguments Due In Weekley-Reed Action Today

Closing arguments in the $10,000 Weekley-Reed defamation suit were expected to be given by attorneys this afternoon as a long parade of witnesses ended just before the noon recess today.

The case is expected to go to the jury of seven women and five men tomorrow following the charge by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch. The jurors will consider four days of testimony concerning the charges of Willard S. Weekley, former superintendent of the Butler schools against Dr. John R. Reed, Butler physician.

In rebuttal of the defense, which concluded its testimony yesterday, Weekley's attorneys called seven witnesses to the stand this morning in at attempt to prove that the former superintendent had a good reputation in Butler and vicinity prior to the time Dr. Reed allegedly made malicious and slanderous remarks concerning his physical condition.

Hallie Taylor, Marjorie Taylor, Mrs. Daisy Stone, John S. Swank, David Grubb, Clarence Tugend and Wade Forbes all testified to his good reputation. Defense attorneys in cross-examination attempted to prove the testimony prejudiced by the part the witnesses took in the school fight in 1941.

Mrs. Wahneeta Webb Brown took the stand to disprove the testimony given by Floyd Norris, a witness for the defendant, that Weekley had attempted to bribe him to testify concerning remarks made about Weekley by Dr. Reed.

Charges Bricker Uses State Highway Department as 'Tool'

Charges that the highway department is being used by the state administration to serve political and personal interests had been made today by the Cleveland Press.

In the first of a series of articles the newspaper accused Gov. John W. Bricker and Congressman George Bender, chairman of the Cuyahoga county Republican central committee, of defrauding the public and of violating criminal laws of the state in operation of the department in Cuyahoga county.

It charged that state and county political machines had combined to circumvent the state civil service laws, and to violate state statutes prohibiting the employment of classified workers who are engaged in political activities.

It also charged the administration with distributing jobs on an outright patronage basis through a precinct and ward system, and of padding pay rolls and hoarding labor.

"Gov. Bricker, through Congressman Bender, has not cleaned up the highway 'patronage mess' which Mr. Bricker charged against former Gov. Martin L. Davey," the Press article said. "Instead, the system has been developed and extended."

Under the new system, the newspaper said, former highway employes, some with civil service ratings, have been ousted and their places taken by Republican ward leaders, precinct committee-

MANSFIELDERS MAY HAVE HAD CRACK AT JAP

City's Battery D Was Part of Division That Went Overseas In 1942.

Military secrecy which has veiled operations of Ohio's 37th division which includes a company of Mansfield men, was lifted for the first time today when dispatches from Allied headquarters in the south Pacific revealed that the 37th aided in the capture of the Japanese airbase at Munda on New Georgia island.

It was the Buckeye division's baptism under fire in the present war and it is quite probable that many Mansfield soldiers, former national guardsmen of Battery D, 134th field artillery, saw their first action in the battle.

The guardsmen then under the command of Major Coleman Todd, now a lieutenant colonel, were called to active duty in the fall of 1940 when the national guard was federalized.

When the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor the outfit was in training at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, under the command of Gen. Robert S. Beightler, former state highway director.

While the Mansfield company was still in the United States many of its officers were transferred to other divisions and it is unlikely that any of those men were engaged in the battle for New Georgia. Col. Todd is now in Mansfield on leave.

The division went overseas about 18 months ago, elements of the outfit scattered throughout the southwest Pacific.

Maneuvers in the Louisiana swamps two years ago proved to be good training for the methods of jungle warfare employed against the Japanese.

During those maneuvers, Gen. Beightler said he was "satisfied that as long as the security of our nation rests in the hands of men like those of the 37th division, we shall have nothing to fear."

Beightler served 20 months overseas in the last war with the

The second accident happened at 9:45 p. m. a mile south of Mansfield. Driver of the truck, Henry Hagerty, Cleveland, told officers he was crowded off the road by a passing motorist. Hagerty was not injured.

OHIOANS TO GET HOLIDAY TURKEY

Freeze Order Seen as Not Affecting State Markets.

COLUMBUS —(ANS)— Ohioans will have their usual Thanksgiving turkey this year, despite a federal order reserving the August-September crop of the festive bird for the armed forces, Ohio State university poultry experts predicted today.

The freezing order, designed to assure a turkey dinner for those in the armed forces overseas, will not affect Buckeye holiday menus, they said, because few Ohio turkeys are ready for market in those two months.

Most of the birds for overseas shipment will come from southern and western states.

Federal Pension Bosses Get Told To 'Go to Hell'

JEFFERSON, Mo. —(AP)— The Republican controlled Missouri house of representatives—backing a member's shout of "tell the federal government to take their money and go to hell"—defeated a bill to provide an additional $750,000 to administer the state's $69,000,000 social security program.

Republican Gov. Forrest C. Donnell had asked the addition to $4,460,000 already appropriated after federal officials suggested the federal matching dollars would be shut off if the state didn't administer the law properly.

Deafening choruses of nays greeted amendments which would have sliced the sum to as low as $340,000. The rejection of the entire appropriation was by a 62 to 60 vote.

"The federal government is always holding a dictator's club over our heads and saying 'if you don't do this or don't do that we're going to give you a sound spanking and take your candy away'," Rep. Ralph Erdwin, Republican, replied. "I say we ought to raise the sales tax to three per cent (it is now two per cent) earmark a penny of that for pensions and tell the federal government to take their money and go to hell."

Evacuation of Sicily In Full Swing, Report

Americans Beat Off Violent Attacks To Establish Bridgehead Behind Germans; 7th, 8th Armies Battle Fiercely to Achieve Gains.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Sicily said today it was stated authoritatively that German evacuation of Sicily was in full swing. Dispatches from Sicily two nights ago had reported the Germans were withdrawing troops and heavy equipment.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—A task force of American infantry again has landed from the sea behind German lines on the north coast of Sicily in an amphibious operation even more daring than the first and established a bridgehead east of Cape Orlando after cutting through powerful Nazi resistance.

The Yanks had to fight their way ashore to launch the assault at dawn Wednesday and were met immediately by strong German counterattacks, reports to headquarters said today.

American warships and swarms of fighter-bombers covered the landing, pouring a storm of shells, bombs and machine-gun fire into German detachments as they surged down the beach to give battle.

The surprise element which contributed to the success of the outflanking of the San Agata-Cesaro line from the sea at the weekend was lacking, but the Americans broke up the counterattacks, and a field dispatch said they had "successfully established a bridgehead."

The action, near the mouth of the Nazo river 40 miles due west of Messina, probably trapped large German forces within a 10-mile area between the main American army attacking frontally along the north coast and the landing party at the rear.

Elsewhere in the battle for Sicily steady Allied advances were reported on all fronts and large-scale air attacks on the Italian mainland were resumed.

In the inland drive on Randazzo, the American Seventh army column was reported to have advanced half way along the road from Cesaro to that bitterly-defended stronghold, with the Eighth army attacking northward in close cooperation.

The Germans were fighting a strong rear guard action on the east coast, but the British Eighth army driving northward toward Messina has captured a village south of Prajola and the village of Zafferana Etna, on the eastern slopes of Mt. Etna about five miles from fallen Guardia.

Terni, railway communications center about 100 miles north of Rome, was attacked yesterday by heavy bombers from the northwest Africa command and bombs were reported to have struck in the railway yards and on industrial buildings.

SHAKY: Kharkov Fall Near as Russians Hammer at Suburbs

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Hard-fighting Russian troops are hammering the suburbs of Kharkov after virtually encircling the beleaguered Germans in the fortress city, it was announced today, and the fall of the great Ukrainian stronghold appeared imminent.

The onrushing Red forces were less than seven and one-half miles from the city at the nearest point.

The German escape gap was narrowed to less than 60 miles when a Soviet column, in a brilliant wheeling movement southwest of the city toward the Dnieper river, cut the Kharkov-Poltava railway line at Vodyanaya, forty miles to the west.

(An Algiers broadcast recorded in London by Reuters said Russian troops were less than three miles from Kharkov, and that at some points "fighting was going on in the suburbs" of the city.)

Yesterday's thrust toward the Dnieper also threatened German forces in the Donets basin, where large units of the Nazis are deployed from 100 to 200 miles to the southeast. Carried further, the Soviet advance would cut in behind these forces to render their position untenable.

In frantic efforts to relieve Kharkov, the Nazis threw in several tank divisions, the Moscow communique said, but the Russians crashed through, capturing 50 populated places in a 12 mile drive. In the town of Akhtyrka, 42 miles south of Sumy, 1,600 Germans were killed, 36 tanks demolished and 260 trucks destroyed. Captured booty included nearly 200 trucks.

In the raging Russian-German battle on a 400-mile line from north of Smolensk to south of Kharkov, one column was less than 40 miles from Bryansk after capturing Alexeyevka in spite of heavy enemy resistance.

(The German high command said the "great defense battle" was continuing in the Belgorod area, without mentioning the threat to Kharkov, and declared

BOMBED: Bonn Raided by U. S. Fortresses; Nuremberg Burning

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Flying Fortresses of the U. S. Eighth army air force attacked Bonn, 15 miles southeast of Cologne today, American headquarters announced.

The American thrust, made across the channel in bright sunlight, followed night raids on the Ruhr and Rhineland by RAF Mosquitos.

The overnight attacks on German war production plants followed a heavy Tuesday night attack on the Nazi shrine city of Nuremberg, where heavy RAF bombers spilled more than 1,500 long tons of explosives.

(A Bern, Switzerland, report received by CBS said 2,000 bodies had been recovered from the Nuremberg ruins and 40,000 persons were made homeless. Fires still burned in the city last night, the report said.)

Bonn, population 100,000 is a large railway center on a Rhine valley line which forms one of Germany's most important north-south communications systems.

The German radio said the raiders were spotted before reaching the French coast, were intercepted and many heavy air battles were fought above the clouds.

In other operations by the RAF during the night, mines were laid in enemy waters and railway targets in France and the Low Countries were attacked. One night bomber was reported missing.

German planes retaliated last night in the heaviest raid on Britain in several weeks on an unnamed southwest coast town.

Eight persons were killed and a number were injured.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1943 — PAGE NINE

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Anglo-American recognition of the French National Committee of Liberation, which Washington hints is coming soon, will help in North Africa. Our action has been delayed far too long already.

Our failure to recognize the committee thus far has caused the rise of some feeling in North Africa antagonistic to the Allies. General de Gaulle takes it as a studied indication of our displeasure, directed at him. The effect is to weaken those in the French committee who are striving to insure the restoration of self-government in France at the time of her liberation.

Clapper

Certainly if we delay action much longer the effect will be decidedly harmful to the Allied cause. It might easily lead to undesirable developments at the time of the liberation of France, not to mention difficulties placed in the way of the full use of French military strength in the actual campaign of liberation.

On the Allied side, our handling of political affairs seem to be a maze of floundering, of indecision, of wrong decisions, and of questionable use of General Eisenhower as a mouthpiece for political warfare.

The state department has been subjected to much picayune criticism, and sometimes to blame which was not properly placed there. But regardless of who must share the responsibility, the fact is that from this side our handling of political matters in connection with the war appears to be completely lacking in the sure touch, the sense of unity, the clear direction, the understanding and the bold, efficient execution that are shown on the military side of the Allied effort.

With the war reaching the state of Axis disintegration, it is imperative that Roosevelt and Churchill put this side of their affairs into the same excellent running order that exists on the military side.

The lack of Allied policy as to what shall be done with Germany has already opened the way for the Soviets to start their "Free Germany" campaign.

Secondly, we may have blundered in the way we put it up to the neutrals not to harbor Axis war criminals. We raised a question that seems to infringe on their sovereign rights, and they all may be inclined to reject our communication. It might have been possible to obtain their co-operation in a way that did not, on the record, offend the national pride of the neutrals.

Thirdly, in the handling of the French political situation it seems clear that we have neglected the realities.

Although there are some traits about De Gaulle that make him difficult to deal with, some grounds for fear that he may attempt to assert a dictatorial leadership when France is liberated, he is at present, and so far ahead as we can see, the strongest political force among Frenchmen.

General Giraud never will be a political leader. We simply cannot prop him up to the point of effectiveness. The De Gaulle forces have made capital out of our taking Giraud to the United States for a big show while pointedly ignoring De Gaulle, the dominant political figure.

Middle-ground Frenchmen such as Jean Monnet, minister of armaments, are working on a plan to insure general elections in France as soon as liberation has gone far enough, and to have the committee recognized as a limited trustee for that purpose.

When we keep the committee weak by delaying to recognize it we thereby strengthen De Gaulle individually and handicap the effort to build the machinery of self-government around him.

This is more than a question of French internal politics. It was the fall of France that left us exposed and made isolation impossible. There must be a strong, friendly France for our protection. A weak France, prey to hostile influences, would be most dangerous for us as well as for the British. We must work with what we have, which is De Gaulle and the Committee of Liberation.

BRICKER WILL BACK HERBERT, CAPITAL HEARS

Political Observers Assert Governor Has Renounced 4th Term Ambitions.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—A belief that Governor Bricker has renounced any intention of seeking a fourth term, and will support instead the gubernatorial ambitions of Lieut.-Gov. Paul M. Herbert, was expressed today by political observers in the wake of Herbert's "election" as chairman of the state's post-war planning committee

It was learned from a reliable source that Herbert's selection as head of the 21-member committee, which will place him in the limelight for a year at least, was dictated by the governor at a conference preceding by one day yesterday's organization meeting of the post-war group.

On March, 13, Bricker revealed that he was "considering" a fourth-term bid. Since that time he has held steadfastly to that statement, but in the light of Herbert's election to the important planning post at the governor's instigation, a different announcemen' soon may be forthcoming.

Why, political observers ask, would Bricker place in such a spot-lighted position one of the men most prominently mentioned to succeed him if he himself were to seek the gubernatorial chair again? Why load your opponent's gun?

If this line of reasoning is correct, and Bricker should withdraw from the race to support Herbert and further his own still-undeclared candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, another straw can be seen floating in the wind.

That is, that the coolness that has persisted between the governor and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert may have reached the point of an open break. Tom Herbert, who is no relation to the lieutenant governor, was supposed to be Bricker's choice as his successor. But a certain coolness between them arose about the time the attorney general's anti-gambling bill had such a narrow squeak in its passage through the legislature.

One other point should not be overlooked. If Bricker could have his own way completely, the man to succeed him as governor reportedly would be Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, now commanding the state's 37th division in the South Pacific.

Should Beightler, Bricker's former highway director, come back to the state before the primary election next May through some chain of events at present unforeseen, Bricker almost certainly would support the soldier if he cared to run.

PREDICT LEWIS WILL WITHDRAW HIS BID TO AFL

Labor Sources See District 50 Organization as Obstacle To Union Consolidation.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Labor sources predicted today that John L. Lewis would withdraw his application for reaffiliation of his miners with the American Federation of Labor.

The executive council of the AFL decided late yesterday to delay action on Lewis' petition. The council voted to submit the application without recommendation to the AFL convention at Boston next October.

Sources close to Lewis, however, believed he would withdraw the request unless AFL leaders, hesitant to lose more than a half-million dues-paying members, persuade him to let it stand.

President William Green of the AFL said district 50 of the United Mine Workers had proved a major obstacle to the reaffiliation. District 50 is Lewis' pet.

It represents workers in various industries and crafts throughout the country. Its membership parallels that of several established AFL craft unions, and Green said jurisdictional disputes and "internal strife" would arise if it were admitted to the AFL.

Lewis has contended that district 50 should be accepted first, and that negotiations to settle jurisdictional difficulties could be conducted later. ALF leaders, however, showed no inclination to accept District 50 without defining its jurisdiction and perhaps restricting its membership.

Lewis' request for readmittance was regarded by most observers as a move to consolidate anti-New Deal factions of the AFL. His petition was sponsored by William Hutcheson, president of the AFL Carpenters union. Both Lewis and Hutcheson are Republicans.

By delaying action on the petition, the executive council denied Lewis a voice—even if he is accepted—at the October convention. The convention will be the last to be held by the AFL before the 1944 presidential election.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I am indebted to the liberal and labor committee of the so-called American Labor party, which is not American but European and represents not labor but the political ambitions of a few naturalized but unassimilated New York union politicians, for a brisk opinion on the communist wing of this parasitic organization. The communists are a minority group of the so-called American Labor party and, for several years they have been trying to get control of the key offices, according to their standard plan as followed successfully in the newspaper guild, the lawyers' guild and some of the pseudo-artistic guilds in Hollywood. The majority's political faith is not quite communistic but pink in relation to revolutionary red.

Pegler

The party was designed to be a balance-of-power group in New York, a minority with decisive power, and thus to be more influential than the American major parties. It does not go out after major offices on the basis of its own competitive strength at the polls but contents itself with supporting New Deal candidates, and others who look promising. Thus a minority European bloc would decide issues and elections according to the European plan which degenerated into tragic absurdity and finally into disastrous political confusion.

In a final appeal to the members of the so-called ALP, this committee published a display advertisement Tuesday warning the members if the communist wing should win the primary, the party would become "another communist party adjunct."

"The so-called left wing, representing the thinking and the politics of the communists, is nothing but a Trojan horse smuggled into the ALP by the communist party," the ad said. The ad then frankly boasts that the ALP, admittedly a minority group, "nevertheless holds the balance of power in our state and points the way to the future for the entire nation."

In other words, David Dubinsky, Alex Rose, Luigi Antonini, Dean Alfange and a few other professional political unioneers representing a mixture of leftish political philosophies imported from continental Europe, look to a day when their minority holding the balance of power between the Democratic and Republican parties may decide national elections for the Americans and their leaders may collect their reward in the way of influential national offices and European innovations in our government.

"What is the left wing?" the advertisement asks, meaning the communist wing.

Let us examine the record of their lead spokesman:

"Vito Marcantonio," who is Fiorello La Guardia's political protege and a leader of the communist racial agitation in Harlem, "has consistently opposed in congress during the period of the Nazi-Soviet pact, measures for the defense of the United States.

"He voted nay on appropriations for construction of ships and planes. He voted for Ham Fish's plan to postpone the draft for 60 days. He voted against the selective service act. He voted against lend-lease. He voted against the bill giving the president the power to seize the ships of aggressor nations

"Marcantonio changed his mind when the Soviet union was invaded. So did the communist party. So did the 'left wing' controlled by the communist party."

So also did Joseph Curran's national maritime union, which now controls on the Atlantic coast the manning of the great American Merchant Marine, a national asset of the United States and the property of the whole American people, although advertisement did not digress to the extent of saying so.

"Where," the advertisement asks, "would America (and Russia) be if this nation had followed the advice of Marcantonio and his 'left wing' during those darkest hours of the war?

"Today, these 'left wing' leaders are proclaiming their undying affection for the president. Today these isolationists of yesterday are heaping calumny on every opponent whose memory is long enough to recall that only a short two years ago they were smearing the president, picketing the White House and chanting that "The Yanks Are Not Coming."

There is much more of it and, of course, none of this is news to any American who has watched the communist operations, but coming as it does from the European bloc itself, the admission is feed-box information.

Incidentally, in the same paper which carried this ad, Mr. Antonini, of David Dubinsky's garment workers, boasts of receipt of an "underground" message from the Italian general federation of labor telling of a strike of "irresistible proportions" against the Badoglio government—which would seem to be good news, if true.

But do you know what would happen to George Spelvin, American, if he put himself into communication with any underground organization in an enemy country?

The FBI would be all over him in an hour and he would spend the rest of the war in a federal prison, that's what.

COLUMBUS — A motorist is not required to stop by a non-working traffic signal, even though it may be green in the opposing directions, the state supreme court today held in ordering retrial of a Canton suit.

Vera Welch, a minor, was awarded $3,750 by the Stark county courts from Howard M. Howes, a truck owner, for injuries received in a truck-bus crash, March 21, 1941, at Cleveland avenue, southwest, and Ninth street southwest, in Canton. Miss Welch was a passenger on a bus of the Canton City Lines, Inc., which made a settlement with her for $1,250 and was not a defendant.

The city bus was crossing the intersection on the green light, and Howe's truck was crossing on a dead light.

In ordering a new trial because of a prejudical charge to the jury, the supreme court held that the presence of a traffic signal at an intersection, when not working, may be considered a warning to approaching traffic, but does not require the driver to stop.

Such driver, however, is not absolved from using ordinary care, the court held, and where an automatic traffic signal is not working, a motor vehicle entering the intersection first is there lawfully, as is another vehicle which entered the intersection on a green light.

Both would lawfully be in the intersection, and each driver is required to exercise "ordinary care" to avoid a collision, the court held.

PLENTY OF LABOR

WASHINGTON - (AP) - The army, navy, War Production board and the maritime commission listed three Ohio localities—Portsmouth, Steubenville and Zanesville—as areas in which the "labor supply is and will continue to be adequate to meet all known labor requirements."

Mansfield police are going to see themselves in the movies Sept. 2. Photographers from the Federal Bureau of Investigation district office in Cleveland were making movies of police activities in the city today, posing officers before "bright lights" at the city building and making other pictures of the enforcement officers in action. The film will be shown at the next district police conference here next month, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said.

Boy Scouts of Troop 11 are going to be rewarded for their efforts in making the troop's refreshment stand at Mansfield municipal airport a success this summer. Scoutmaster Harold Gorsuch has announced that the 18 members of the troop are going to have a week's camping trip at Bay Point on Lake Erie Aug. 15 to 22 and the cost of the trip will be financed by the money taken in at the refreshment stand. Transportation to Bay Point will be furnished by members of the troop committee. The boys will sleep in tents and cook their own food.

The courtroom is a place of dignity but often a bit of levity will slip into a trial, even one as serious as the Weekley-Reed suit now being tried. Yesterday afternoon one of the witnesses for the plaintiff was handed a paper to identify but said he could nor read it because he had forgotten his glasses. He tried the spectacles of Attorney John Catlett who was questioning him. When these did no good, Catlett asked Attorney L. H. Beam, opposing counsel, to lend the witness his glasses. "Yes, of course," Beam said, "I'd like to have him see things through my eyes."

FIXES BLAME IN DETROIT RIOTS

Report Says Negro Leaders' Demand For 'Equality' Brought Disorders.

(By United Press)

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. - "Racial equality" exhortations by negro leaders were blamed as the "most significant" factor in outbreak of Detroit's bloody June 21st race rioting in a report submitted today to Gov. Harry F. Kelly.

Kelly, here for political conferences, released the text of the 312-page report soon after its submission by representatives of his four-member fact-finding committee.

The committee reiterated its conclusion that the riots definitely were not inspired by subversive elements, but that they resulted from an attack by negroes on whites which set off "smoldering racial tension" and flared into open violence June 20 and 21, taking 34 lives in the worst race riots since World War I.

In placing a share of blame for the riots on negro elements, the report specifically named Leo Tipton, 35-year-old negro, charged in a Detroit warrant with inciting a riot when he leaped to a dance hall microphone, represented himself as a detective and urged 500 negroes to "avenge" the alleged slaying of a colored woman and her baby on Belle Isle, island park south of the city.

The report concluded that "some self-designated responsible negro leaders must share with the colored newspapers responsibility for the unfortunate attitude of certain negro elements."

GOING TO PARLEY

Brunner To Get 'Lowdown' on Third War Loan Drive.

H. G. Brunner, one of the Richland county co-chairmen of Third War Loan drive, which opens in September, will attend a meeting in Cleveland Monday for the county chairmen in this district.

Speakers for the meeting are to be Wesley Lindow, treasury department statistician, and Dr. Peter Odegard, assistant to the secretary of the treasury, according to information Brunner has received concerning the meeting.

Lindow will speak on the sources of the money supply for the drive and will point out where the drive should be concentrated. Odegard will show the importance of the drive.

Brunner and Paul M. Eliot are chairmen of the county drive.

Linton Weil Says—

It's been several months now since I first opened the Riobamba and joined the ranks of Manhattan's bistro keepers. During these months it's been my good fortune to meet more people in the course of a nitetime, than I had ever hoped to meet in the course of a lifetime. Watching from the sidelines, I've had ample opportunity to formulate some very definite opinions about the great and near-great, which I would like to record in my own Webster fashion.

Best loved female performer, Jane Froman. . . . Best loved male performer, Joe E. Lewis. . . . Heartiest laugher, Ted Husing. . . . Most generous performer, Eddie Davis. . . . Most angered by hecklers, Jerry Lester. . . . Most appreciative audience, Milton Berle. . . . Easiest to get along with, Connee Boswell.

Most consistent rounder of the bistro keepers, Jimmy Vernon of La Martinique. . . . Most co-operative rival saloon keeper, Lou Walters. . . . Star most serious about her work, Mary Small. . . . Star least serious about his work (but still tops), Joe E. Lewis. . . . Newcomer most likely to succeed, Kay Penton.

Most lavish male spender and tipper, Jorge Sanchez, the Cuban plantation gee-whiz . . . female biggest spender and tipper, Barbara Bannister. . . . Most appreciative of the ability of other singers, Gladys Swarthout. . . . Most devoted to the horses, Joe Frisco. . . . Most devoted to the fillies, Jack Topping. . . . Most superstitious night club habitue, Jack Pearl.

Prettiest girl, Angela Greene of "Early to Bed." Freshest looking beauty, Marianne O'Brien. . . . Best companion in a night club, Morton Downey—he's full of attention, gags and anecdotes. . . . Most domineering, Peggy Hopkins Joyce (ask her male escorts). . . . Most sensuous looking girl, Gertrude Niesen. . . . Giddiest, Elinor Troy. . . . Men seen with the prettiest girls, Al Bloomingdale and Horace Schmidlapp. . . . Best coiffed, Jane Pickens. . . . Best garbed, Hildegarde. . . . Most daring dressers, Paulette Goddard and Maria Montez.

Quietest patron, Xavier Cugat. . . . Funniest heckler, Henny Youngman. . . . Most amiable patron, Octavus Roy Cohen. . . . Most tireless rhumbaddict, Mae Murray. . . . Most enthusiastic rhumba dancers, Jack Robbins and George Abbott (but not together). . . . Patron who causes the most hoopla on the dance floor, Martha Raye. . . . Femme most co-operative with cafe photographers, Dorothy Lamour. . . . Pat O'Brien takes the honors in the male department. . . . Chap who enjoys the playboy life most thoroughly, Jimmy Bryant.

--AND A BIT OF CHATTER

Ralph Hughes relating his experiences at the American Legion convention. . . . Attorneys William Morris, James Eberly and Theodore Lutz looking in on the Weekley-Reed trial in common pleas court yesterday. . . . Seven-year-old Rollie Bertka, 416 West Fourth street proudly showing neighbors the feature of his Victory garden, an eight-foot tall tomato plant with 29 tomatoes on it.

Marine Lieut. John Hallabrin and Army Lieut. Robert Moorhead exchanging experiences. . . . Cpl. Richard Sheehe, stationed in the southwest Pacific area, writing to fellow Phalanx fraternity brothers at the Y. M. C. A. . . . Pfc. and Mrs. John C. Wolf returning to Camp Livingston, La., after visiting friends here for 15 days. . . . Red Cross workers trying to read the names on several blood donor cards.

Master Sgt. John L. Carr and Mrs. Carr arriving from Camp Mackall, N. C., for a visit with their families in Mansfield . . . Mrs. Garnet Boyle back on the job as switchboard operator and receptionist at the city building after a vacation at Little Rock, Ark.

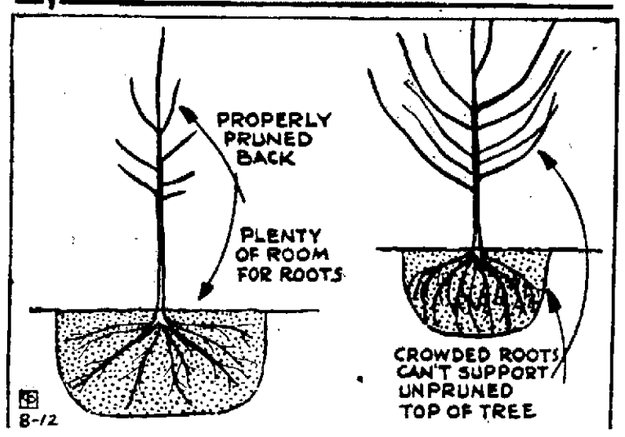
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

MANY VICTORY gardeners have decided to plant fruit trees this fall. The decision is a good one, for a home orchard can prove a profitable addition to a Victory garden, providing the variety of fruit trees is carefully selected and the planting is properly done.

There is more to planting a fruit tree than just sticking it into the ground, even though the trees when received from the nursery look like little more than sticks or whips.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the holes for planting fruit trees must be large enough to permit the roots to be spread in natural position, as illustrated. All broken portions of the roots should be cut off so as to leave the ends smooth and sound. If the roots of the young tree are crowded into a hole which is not large enough or deep enough, as illustrated, the chances are the tree will not live.

All trees should be planted two or three inches deeper than they stood in the nursery row. Then pack the soil firmly about the roots, being careful, however, not to break or bark the roots. Leave three inches of the surface soil loose to serve as a mulch.

Pruning of the tree should be done at time of planting approximately as illustrated.

Member of Early Mansfield Family Dies In Cleveland

Otto Schnitzer, member of a pioneer Mansfield family, died Monday at his home, 1422 West 65th street, Cleveland, after four years' illness. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery Friday at 2 p. m., following a service at 10 a. m. in St. Coleman's church, Cleveland.

Mr. Schnitzer was born in Delaware and was a son of the late Ferdinand F. Schnitzer, who was supervising architect during the building of the Ohio State reformatory here. He moved to Cleveland 30 years ago and was a contractor in brick construction work.

He is survived by his wife, two brothers, Fred, of East Cleveland and William, of Cleveland, and two sisters, Miss Pauline Schnitzer of Cleveland, and Mrs. Aurora Woods of Los Angeles, Calif.

USE MORE NUTS

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—(INS)—The nation's homemakers were urged today to use more nuts in main dishes than for cake decorations and toping of rich deserts by Inez M. Eckblad, of the Colorado State College Extension Service.

This year's entire crop is estimated at 300 million pounds, half of which is English walnuts, Miss Eckblad said.

"Nuts have a high nutritional value," she declared.

CHAPTER XXIV

When Elinor McLean pushed back her chair and prepared to arise from the breakfast table Toby said, "Not to the telephone, Mother. We don't want anyone except our families to know of our marriage intentions until after the wedding. We'll have it announced in the Sunday paper. The announcements will go out Saturday afternoon. We don't want anyone to know about it until we've gone."

"But darling, isn't that irregular?"

"Maybe but that's the way we want it."

"Oh, Toby, you can't do that! It won't be any fun, darling."

"My wedding isn't for fun. Mine isn't going to be a drinking party for anybody and I don't want people shaking my hand and patting me on the back and asking a lot of damfool questions. Sorry. Maybe Meegan will give you a better show. You can talk about it all you care to when it's over."

Meegan said, "I think Toby is right, Mother."

Elinor McLean looked from one to the other anxiously. "You sound as if you're ashamed of her. Is there something you're keeping from me?"

"On the contrary," Toby said. "We want it simple because there's a war going on and because we don't want people staring at us and because I haven't any money. I'll have to get enough from you to see me through until I can pay it back. I don't want a big debt."

"You know I'll let you have the money, dear. Why, soon you'll be making so much money it will be simply wonderful!" She laughed her light, innocent laughter. "Well, at least I may call . . . What is her name again? How stupid of me. But it isn't an easy name to remember, you know . . . Really, I'm quite bewildered! To come down to breakfast as usual and before you know it to be calling my future daughter-in-law . . . I always thought I'd know the girl you were going to marry, know her as I've known Sue and Adele and Clare since she was a child."

All at once Toby seemed withdrawn and remote. "Her name is Erica Lester, Mother."

"Oh, of course. You want to speak to her, don't you, Meegan?"

"I certainly do."

When their mother went out to telephone, Toby lighted another cigaret.

"That's over . . . telling her."

"She took it very well."

He nodded.

Meegan said, "I'd like to see Erica today."

"I'll bring her up this afternoon. She said something about going to New York next week to buy clothes. She'll probably want to talk about it. I don't think she's ever been to New York."

When their mother returned to the dining room she was wiping her eyes with a lace bordered handkerchief and smiling. "She is sweet, Toby. So reserved and gentle. But I don't know how I'm going to pretend to my friends that nothing has happened in our family. Doesn't it seem a pity that we must wash dishes and dust on such an important day? Oh, Erica is waiting to speak to you, Meegan."

A moment later Meegan said, "Good morning, Erica. I'm happy for Toby and you. Happier, I believe, for Toby."

Erica's voice was quiet. "Thank you. It's real, too. I thought last night when I woke up this morning it wouldn't be real."

"Toby is going to bring you up this afternoon. We'll talk more then. Now I know he wants to talk to you . . ."

When she went back to the dining room her mother was in the kitchen and Toby was sitting at the table alone, his eyes brooding, his cigaret burning dangerously near his fingers. And looking at him she felt again the distrust and fear that had been slowly gathering in her dispelling optimism. Is it for love, Toby? If not for love, then for what? Have you stopped feeling with your head and begun to think with it? Where is Clare in this new order you've planned for yourself? Even your desire for secrecy was carefully thought out. You don't want Clare to know of the deed until it is done.

When she said, "Erica is waiting to speak to you," Toby gave a slight tremor of surprise.

"Okay." And when he went out to speak to Erica he closed the door so Meegan should not hear what he said.

During the two weeks preceding Toby and Erica's wedding Meegan felt herself swept along on a wave of optimism she knew to be superficial. Nevertheless she welcomed a mind almost wholly occupied with her usual chores and those added by preparations for the wedding. She welcomed Erica who came shyly with Helen, the latter's attempts to subdue her appearance rather successful. With Erica Meegan felt no false notes, for the earthiness and honesty and utter lack of falseness in the girl dispelled them. Somehow Erica with her clear dark eyes and quiet movements seemed to walk more firmly than anyone she knew. With Toby, Erica was not demonstrative. The fluent use of endearments was not for her. It was only in the way she looked at him with a lucid understanding of him mixed with her love that one could see how much, how proudly, how fearlessly she loved him.

Nor was Toby demonstrative with her. Sweet and attentive and amusing he was, but Meegan had not seen him touch her. It seemed to her when they were together that Toby was studying Erica with humility and tenderness. But his brooding look remained as well as his withdrawn, remote attitude.

Plans for the wedding, for the honeymoon in New England at a lodge where he had stopped several times with his father he discussed openly with Meegan and his mother. On those subjects he was not in the least evasive. Nor was he about the job he would take upon his and Erica's return to the city. He and Erica had driven to town one day, returning with the news that they had rented a furnished apartment.

One holds as memories of people dear not important events connected with them. It seemed to Meegan that she would always remember Toby and Erica stepping from the car that hot afternoon with the news that they had found a home. Erica's tense, tight little face had one of its moments of radiance. She had said, "And there's a chair in needlepoint in the living room and the curtains are handmade . . ." Important facts to Erica who had said such a short while ago that she did not belong anywhere. Toby had smiled upon her dark head, Toby who had always lived with needlepoint chairs and handmade curtains.

"Can you cook?" he asked. "I forgot to ask that. Wouldn't it be awful to marry a girl and then discover she couldn't cook?"

"I've been cooking ever since I was high enough to reach the stove," Erica had said.

"Good," Toby said. "Maybe you can teach Mother a few tricks. Meegan could stand better meals."

Engrossed in a purely social activity and with a reasonable excuse to buy new clothes Elinor McLean was at her best. Nor could Meegan, knowing how pitifully small was their capital, dissuade her from a trip to town to buy new clothes for herself and Meegan. The best for Toby, of course, regardless of cost. For his wedding expenses and honeymoon she depleted her reserve to a minimum alarming to Meegan who stood helplessly beside her, wondering how her mother could so blithely add her signature to the checks. She knew how difficult it was for her mother to keep the facts of the wedding a secret. Toby said there was really no need to send out announcements. "Just put Mother on the telephone," he said one morning. But the announcements were being made . . . and one would be sent to Clare.

Clare called no more and Toby was going to marry Erica and Toby had a job. When the summer ended, would the cloud under which she, Meegan, lived go with it? Would she return to a life that had been her normal existence since her father had died . . . the apartment in town, her job at the hospital, dates with young men on week-end leave and some kind of active participation in the national defense program? Would nothing happen to punctuate the suspense that had been gathering since Clare had come back? Nothing . . . nothing at all? Then the fire that Clare's hands had begun would be snuffed out . . . But she could no more believe that than one believes that the second act is the end of a play and it is time to go home. That was why, she thought, she wished that Erica had been married immediately. She had a queer feeling that Erica was in danger.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Three new books on aviation will be released this week for older boys. Each is different from the other and the occupational book will be kept with other books of that type rather than with aviation books.

AERONAUTICAL OCCUPATIONS, by Burr W. Leyson—This is a revision of a book first issued five years ago. New opportunities are explained and the latest means of training are described. Commercial and military aviation both have a need for trained men who will apply themselves to their work.

HE'S IN THE AIR CORPS NOW, by Graham and Kulick—Dealing especially with military aviation this book shows the training of the typical air corps fighting man. The course at Randolph Field serves as the chief example.

AIR NAVIGATION, by Herbert S. Zim—Because of the technical nature of air navigation, only the older boys will enjoy that portion of this booy. There are, however, many items of information relative to the future of flying and the importance of training which will be of value to any reader.

The army's standard gasoline for motor vehicles is 80-octane.

War Time FRONTIERS for Service

A BUSINESS built on service never finds its opportunities limited. New frontiers are always ahead. Every day Fuller Dealers make thousands of friends for Fuller Products and in so doing enlarge their opportunities and ours for public service.

The measure and value of every institution is the degree of social and economic service which it renders. To be useful to the nation and community is the highest privilege.

We believe our success is due to having put those principles into practice, and adhering to a long established policy of supplying our customers with products of the highest quality at the lowest prices.

Today every facility of the Fuller Brush Company is devoted to the war effort. Because they are essential to the maintenance of health, cleanliness and morale, the manufacture and sale of Fuller Household and Personal Brushes continues.

We are supplying thousands of gun cleaning brushes to the Army and Navy. Our Machine Shops are building machine tools, cutting tools, dies, aircraft parts and much intricate equipment required for war production.

Our Industrial Division is busier than ever before providing Heavy Duty Brushes, Brooms and Mops, needed to keep war plants clean and efficient. It is also manufacturing special Fullergript Brushes which are built into machines producing war goods.

To supply the Armed Forces is our first duty. To supply the requirements of our home customers is an obligation we are endeavoring to meet.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Tommy (Westinghouse athlete) Moxley, writing to Luther McCally, reports:

"Now I can tell you that I'm in Sicily. The watermelons, grapes and tomatoes are ripe, and that's fine. But otherwise I can't say it's any better than North Africa, except that there aren't any Arabs here.

"I hear Mussolini quit, but that doesn't interest us much. The guy we're after is Hitler."

Dana (Westinghouse) Moxley wrote to Tom not long ago with this question:

"How much are you paying to get your name in Rex Hess's column all the time?"

And the answer came back:

"Rex and I are old friends. We used to sip jake together down in Mt. Vernon."

* * *

And that's as hot a retort as I can think of. Or don't you know about that "jake" business? Red peppers for a chaser would have been cool and refreshing.

* * *

The quip cute comes from Spiv Harris, Mt. Vernon sports scrivener, who reports:

"There's only one soft spot on the Jackets' grid schedule. That's on Oct. 15, an OPEN DATE."

Mt. Vernon meets Wooster, Coshocton, Bucyrus, Marion, Washington Courthouse, Galion, Shelby and Ashland in that order.

Spiv also reports that Mt Vernon has about given up efforts to hire a basketball coach who can also teach industrial arts

And the cage job may fall to Tommy Thomas, grid mentor. Guy Van Nostrand, assistant football coach who tutored the Johnny Appleseed athletic teams last year, or Jack Robison, former head coach who is a very good basketball man.

The Jackets have not yet signed Mansfield for their annual bucketball engagement.

Parks All-Stars Tied at Galion

Parks All-Stars traveled to Galion last evening for a softball game at Heise park, but failed to reach a decision, the game being called because of darkness at the end of the seventh with the score tied 1-1

The Mansfielders got only two hits, while Bog Regula kept eight Galion blows scattered.

Brewers Again Lose to Indians

The American Association's league leading Milwaukee club, which thought it had rid itself of the challenge of Indianapolis not so long ago, found the Indians back on their first place doorstep today.

* * *

This was the result of the Brewers' second straight double header defeat by Indianapolis. The Indians turned the trick last night by identical 6-4 scores and moved ahead of Columbus into second place, two and a half games behind Milwaukee.

* * *

Toledo also grabbed a second straight double header triumph defeating Minneapolis 3-1 and 15-2. This dropped the Millers from fourth to a fifth place tie with Toledo.

Fourth place was taken over by Louisville which nosed out Kansas City 3-2. Another single by Stan Benjamin had tied the score in the seventh.

Columbus turned back St. Paul, 2-1.

TRIBE BUYS GRANT FROM WHITE SOX

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Reserve strength for Cleveland's infield, crippled by the loss of Ken Keltner, was present today as Jimmy Grant, purchased from the Chicago White Sox, joined the Tribe.

Grant, 24-year-old third baseman, was obtained on waivers to help Russ Peters fill the shoes of the injured Keltner. Catcher-Coach George Susce was removed from the active list to meet the 25-player limit.

Phillies Take Two From Bucs

Phenomenal Play of Fitzmen Resumed.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Philadelphia Phillies simply won't allow any dust to collect on that adjective "phenomenal" which for a while it seemed would never be needed again.

* * *

The Phillies returned home yesterday for their first appearance in Shibe park under the management of fat old Freddy Fitzsimmons and promptly swept a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates to extend their present winning streak to six games—matching their best string under the piloting of capable Bucky Harris.

* * *

The bargain bill started at 10:30 a. m. and attracted 11,129 fans, a remarkable turnout that was enough to capture the immediate attention of baseball men. The Phillies beat Truett (Rip) Sewell, the leading pitcher of the year, 2-1 in the first game and followed through with a 2-0 shutout in the second.

The setbacks for the Pirates enabled Cincinnati to move into a tie for second even though the Reds were beaten 5-2 at Brooklyn.

New York's woeful Giants turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 on two home runs by Nick Witek.

The Chicago Cubs divided a doubleheader at Boston Hiram Bithorn pitched a 3-0 shutout for the Cubs in the first game, but the Braves came back to win the nightcap 6-2.

In the American league the New York Yankees were walloped hard for the second straight day by the St. Louis Browns, 9-1. The only blow off Steve Sundra was Charley Keller's 18th home run.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout pitched five-hit ball as Detroit downed the Washington Senators 3-2 with the help of Rudy York's 19th home run.

Cleveland captured a twilight slugging session from the Philadelphia Athletics 10-5, and then baged a pitching battle 2-1 in the night game.

Joe Dobson shut out the White Sox 10-0 while his Boston Red Sox teammates collected 16 hits and clustered seven runs in the eighth inning.

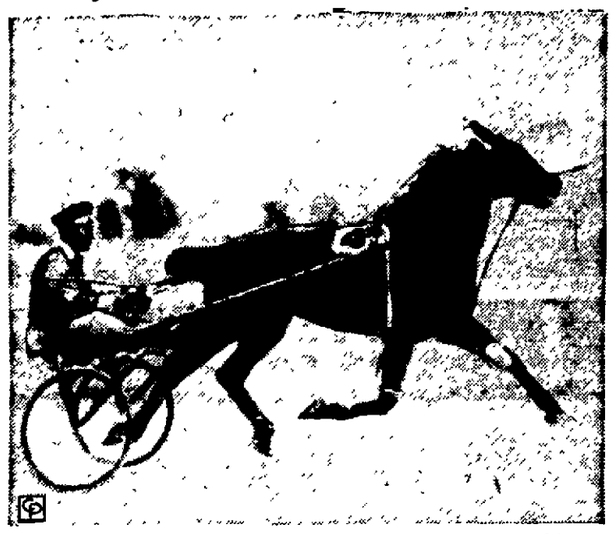
CONSISTENT HITTER

BROOKLYN —(AP)— Billy Herman, who is having one of his best years in the majors, went through the first half of the season with the Dodgers without going hitless in more than two consecutive games.

Colby Hanover In Stake Race



Colby Hanover, above, crack colt owned by C. W. Phellis of New York, though one of the favorites for last year's Hambletonian Stake, failed to realize his owner's hopes so this year Colby Hanover is going after the alumni event of the Hambletonian—the Empire Stake—which will be run on the Empire City track, Yonkers, N. Y., today. Vineyard holds the reins in above picture.

Dodds Comes Close But Fails to Beat Great Gunder

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—When Gunder Haegg arrived in this country a little over five weeks ago, preceded by the hottest press stirred up by a visiting athlete in recent times, some of our more astute observers insisted he couldn't be that good Now as he prepares to return to his native Sweden, the last of the die-hards are ready to admit with a touch of enthusiasm that there has never been anything like him.

* * *

They can't get enough of watching the slender, angular, cool-headed record-cracker slide over the cinders almost like a shadow, and the cheers were unanimous for him today even though he did not approach the fabled four minute mile for which last night's farewell meet at Randall's Island was rigged.

He beat Gil Dodds by two yards and Bill Hulse by about seven in a race that was spectacular despite the comparative slow time—4:06.9, slow that is when stacked up against what had been expected. Actually that performance was among the best ever seen in this country and Haegg was author of most of them

The race was a thriller in which Dodds sought to win with a surprising spurt 200 yards from home and in passing Haegg cut in so sharply that he knocked the Swede off stride momentarily. But just when the slender crowd thought it was about to witness Haegg's first defeat in the country he leaped back into the competition and once in front again obviously was headed for victory.

All in all Haegg completed his tour without a setback in eight races and helped the AAU raise close to $150,000 for the army air forces aid society.

* * *

His main object now is to get back home before the outdoor season ends—and they have no indoor season—so he can attempt to regain from Arne Andersson his mile world record, which Andersson usurped while Gunder was busy in the United States

Here is the log on Haegg's accomplishments since his arrival:

June 24—Won 5,000 meters, 14 48.5, New York.

July 2—Won two miles, 9:02.8, Chicago

July 10—Won two miles, 8:53 8 (New American record), Los Angeles

July 17—Won mile, 4.12 3, San Francisco.

July 21—Won mile, 4.05.3 (new American record) Boston.

July 31—Won mile, 4.05 4, Cleveland.

Aug. 7—Won two miles, 8:51 3 (New American record) Cincinnati.

Aug. 11—Won mile, 4 06 9, New York

Haegg still insists that the mile can be clipped to 3 57 or thereabouts by somebody and he has the notion that he can run it in 4.02 or better—perhaps in four minutes flat, his current aim for the immediate future.

Two Favorites Still In Race

New York State Golf Champion Eliminated.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Dorothy Germain long-hitting Philadelphian were the only pre-tourney favorites remaining in the women's western amateur golf championship today as play moved into the quarter-final round.

* * *

The other favorite, Kay Byrne, New York state champion from Rye, N. Y., and co-medalist with Miss Fox in the qualifying round, was eliminated in the second round play on the Evanston golf club course yesterday.

Her conqueror was Mary Agnes Wall, 24-year-old swinger from Menominee, Mich., and runner-up in the 1941 event, who settled the match on the 17th hole with a beautiful chip shot to win 2 and 1.

In today's quarter-finals Miss Fox clashes with Marjorie Row of Detroit, Miss Germain meets Ann Casey of Mason City, Ia. Miss Wall is paired with Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., and Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O., takes on Betty Jean Rucker of Spokane, Wash

In an all-Ohio match, Miss Kirk came from behind with an astonishing rally to win a 4 and 3 decision over Claire Doran of Cleveland. Miss Kirk was one down to Miss Doran's 39 on the first nine but won four holes in a row, halved the 14th and added the 15th by shooting one under women's par for the six-hole span.

RIDES 6 WINNERS

STEUBENVILLE— (AP)—Franklin Sheaffer rode six winners at Fort Steuben Jockey club yesterday, finishing out front in every race except the first and final events, when he came in fourth and last, respectively.

Kushin, Etzel Tied for Medal

Kushin and Etzel tied for medal honors in the Westinghouse Golf league last evening at Possum Run with cards of 37, one over par.

Volo Song Captures Big Race

Takes Hambletonian and $23,263 Purse.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Volo Song, the $5,000 bargain—son of Volomite, won the Hambletonian and a bankroll of $23,263.92 yesterday by taking two out of three heats. But in the heat he didn't win, he trotted the fastest mile in the 18-year history of the Corn-Tassel Derby — and it doesn't count.

* * *

This was in the first one-mile whirl around the Empire City track. Worthy Boy, the first Hambletonian starter for Mrs. James B. Johnson, jr., of Rochester, Mich., won the dash in the track record trotting time of 2:02 1/2—a mark Volo Song duplicated in knocking off the second heat, before coming back to waltz home with the third in 2:06.

But in that opening spin, Volo Song broke stride just at the start. Before driver Ben White could get him settled down the rest of the field was so far in front, Volo looked like an early arrival for the next race. He took out after the others, made up more than ten lengths and hit the wire in third place, only a length and a half back.

Since the winner was caught in 2:02 1/2, Volo must have zipped a lot faster. No official bothered to put the clock on him, but trainer-driver White apparently carries his own stop-watch and word reached the press box later that Ben's timepiece showed Volo had ripped off the eight furlongs in 2.00 1/2.

This is one full second faster than the Hambletonian mile mark, chalked up back in '37 by Shirley Hanover.

Volo Song's triumph marked the second straight Hambletonian win for Bill Strang, the warehouseman from Flatbush. As for 70-year old trainer-driver White, he is practically in a rut, for the victory was his fourth Hambletonian jackpot, a record no other pilot can touch.

Financially, it was a fancy day. The crowd of 12,407 tossed $353,440 into the mutuels for a new Hambletonian-day high.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By SID FEDER
(Pinch-Hitting for Hugh Fullerton)

NEW YORK —(AP)— Volo Song sizzled a Hambletonian mile in 2.02 1/2. . . . Gunder Haegg rattled it off in 4.06.9 a-foot. . . . Looks like the hoss is here to stay, doesn't it? . . . But neither of them operated as fast as the sports writers who charged from Empire City to Randall's Island so they could see both. . . . Jimmy Londos would have been a great third man for that shoving session Gunder and Gil Dodds put on around the last turn.

HEADLINE: Phillies Win Six Straight Under Fitzsimmons.

Isn't it almost time for the Dodgers to announce a new manager for the Phils? . . . or shouldn't you ask?

WHAT'S BERLIN', MERLIN.

Andy Pafko, the Los Angeles outfielder who's leading the coast league in everything except selling hot dogs, and Red Schoendienst, Rochester's switch-hitting shortstop, are rated the class of the minor leagues this year by the big-time scouts . Andy's all wrapped up for the Cubs. . . And Red's got a Cardinal trade-mark on him . . . Incidentally, the scouts tell you the pitching crop in the bushes this summer is so sorry it should be plowed under . . The chief connection Dr Clain B. Powell, N. Y's new boxing commissioner, has had with beakbusting up to now is that he's one of Joe Louis' close pals.

BOUNCING AROUND.

Harland Clift, the Brownies' third-sacker, puts 31 candles on the birthday cake today. . . . And didn't you notice that Bobo the Great Newsom was 34 yesterday? . . . 61 of Iowa State's 1942-43 letter winners are in the service. . . And 160 of the American league's steak-eaters are ditto, which is 16 more than Uncle Sam borrowed from the junior circuit in World war I . . . Who's the mysterious passer from somewhere in Texas that Stout Steve Owen is threatening to spring at the National pro grid league in his New York Giants' backfield this fall? . . . Could it be he's made that Sammy Baugh-for-Andy Farkas trade with Washington?

Indians Tie Detroit For Third Position

Take Twi-Night Double Bill From Philadelphia Athletics

CLEVELAND—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians, making a belated stretch bid to hit the top of the American league, moved into a third place tie with Detroit today.

The Indians took both games of a twilight-night doubleheader last night from the Philadelphia Athletics 2 to 1 and 10 to 5.

The Indians slugged out the victory in the first game, rapping out 13 hits and scoring half their runs in the second inning, their big attack

The second game was a complete reversal of the first with portly Al Smith again demonstrating he's the best pitcher the Indians have on their roster.

* * *

The Indians got only three hits in the second game, but that was enough for Smith who let the Athletics down with two safeties to win his 11th game of the season.

Lou Boudreau slapped out a home run as the Indians tallied in the second and eighth innings.

Detroit and the Indians were tied 9½ games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees, but only one game behind the second place Washington Senators.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The Cincinnati Reds muffed a chance to take over sole possession of second place in the National league yesterday.

The Brooklyn Dodgers halted their 10-game losing streak to beat the Reds 5 to 2. The Reds, however, went into a tie for second place with Pittsburgh who lost two games to Philadelphia.

* * *

Muffled by Ray Starr for six innings, the Dodgers broke out in the seventh to score all their runs. Luis Olomo knocked in the first run with a triple and Bobby Bragan and Frenchy Bordagaray followed with doubles. Bordagaray climaxed the rally with a clean steal of home.

Whit Wyatt held the Reds to seven hits, three of them in the ninth when they scored the second and final run. Eric Tipton scored the other with a home run.

Westies Beat Barnes Club

Score 11 Runs In Two Frames For Victory.

Scoring all its runs in the fourth and fifth frames, Westinghouse continued undefeated at the top of the Industrial Softball league with an 11-3 victory over Barnes Manufacturing last evening.

Stub Winebrenner, who had hurled a 2-hit victory for the Westies in the district tournment the night before, blanked Barnes until the last two stanzas.

Girls Tourney Sked Changed

Providents Travel To Oberlin Tomorrow.

Dorothy Pitts, star player of the North Ridgeville Softball girls team, is getting married next Wednesday night.

So—the two-out-of three series between Ridgeville and Mansfield Provident Loans for the district championship at Oberlin has been changed. They had been scheduled for Monday, Wednesday and Friday, if necessary, next week.

Now the Providents go to Oberlin tomorrow and Monday evening, and the following Friday, if necessary.

Sunday afternoon the Providents meet Springfield at North Lake park. Alice Iceman Smith will do the chucking.

Electric Battery Used on Racehorse

CHICAGO— (INS) —An owner, his stable of seven horses, a jockey and a pony boy were suspended today at the Washington park race track because of the alleged use of an electric battery on a horse in one of Tuesday's races.

The battery, if it was used, apparently was not endowed with sufficient power, for the horse, although valiantly running first the early stages of the race eventually wound up fifth.

Those suspended by the Washington park stewards were Owner Lawrence F. King, Jockey George Bowman and Pony Boy Chester Jedlinski

The horse involved was Tib a 26 to 1 shot in Tuesday's third race.

TOKYO BARES RAID AGAINST PARAMUSHIRU

Liberators, Fortresses Also Hit Tsu Shima Island In Korea Strait.

to warn the Japanese people that the United States has taken "positive measures" to raid the Japanese mainland and that future aerial assaults on the home islands must be expected.

The Japanese Domei news agency first reported the raid on the Kuriles and frequently thereafter the Tokyo radio issued accounts of the attack.

In the broadcast of an official communique the Jap high command asserted that Flying Fortresses as well as Liberator bombers took part in the attack in the north. The Japs claimed that five Liberators and three Fortresses were in the bombing group and that three of the American craft were shot down by Japanese interceptor planes. One Jap craft was reported missing.

The Japanese asserted that the raiding planes flew in over the northern tip of the Kuriles from bases in the Aleutian islands.

This latest raid, radio Tokyo said in a domestic broadcast to the Japanese people, must be regarded as a result of the "positive measures" the United States has taken to "raid our mainland Japan from the north."

"Future appearances of enemy planes from the north are to be expected," said the announcer.

The attack on the northern districts of the Kuriles, north of the main Nipponese archipelago, was announced by the Japanese northern army district headquarters, Domei said in the broadcast.

In previous instances of assaults on Japanese territory, the Nipponese have been first to announce the attacks. The historic bombing of Tokyo on April 18, 1942, it was recalled, was announced almost immediately by the panic-stricken Japs.

The attack, said Domei, took place at 7:20 a. m. Tokyo time (6:20 p. m. Wednesday EWT) although another Tokyo Japanese-language broadcast beamed to North America fixed the time as 10 minutes earlier.

Paramushiru, northernmost of the Kuriles and just south of Kamchatka, was blasted on the morning of July 19 by a force of United States B-24 Liberator bombers in the first attack on Japanese island territory since Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's force of Mitchell bombers raided Tokyo and other objectives in the main island group.

Paramushiru lies 700 miles west of the island of Attu in the Aleutians which American troops recently regained from Japanese invasion forces.

Tighten Noose on Japs at Bairoko

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—(INS)—Tightening of the American noose around the Bairoko harbor area, last pocket of organized Japanese resistance in New Georgia island in the Solomons, and heavy blows against Jap shipping in the New Guinea area were announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

Their backs to the sea, the doomed Japs on New Georgia offered strongest resistance around Zeita village as the net was drawn ever closer by tough marines who had landed at their rear on the north coast six weeks ago and by the conquerors of Munda to the south.

Meanwhile Allied planes kept a close watch on the Kula gulf, ready to pounce on any Nipponese who might try to escape in small boats to neighboring Kolombangara island to join the garrison at the Vila airbase, which was bombed during the night by an Allied reconnaissance plane.

Jap Subs Patrol Indo-China Coast

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)—The Japanese reportedly have inaugurated a constant anti-submarine patrol along the entire Indo-China coastline following the sinking of five large Japanese vessels by Allied submarines during the past six months.

An informant who escaped recently from Indo-China said the Japanese were developing the Camrath bay deep-water anchorage, once a base for the French Asiatic fleet.

Closing Arguments Due In Weekley-Reed Action Today

She said that she had been caring for Norris's mother at the time Weekley paid her a visit and that Norris had not been present at the time.

Weekley then took the stand to testify that this visit referred to by Mrs. Brown was the only one he made to the Norris home. The plaintiff's attorneys closed their rebuttal with this testimony.

Plans for the closing arguments are that each side will be given one hour in which to present its case. Attorney George Biddle, counsel for plaintiff will open the argument. Attorneys A. S. Beach and L. H. Beam will present the argument for the defendant and Attorney John Catlett will conclude the plaintiff's argument.

Defense attorneys concluded their case late yesterday afternoon, and Weekley's attorneys called the first of their rebuttal witnesses.

Calling 11 witnesses to the stand during the afternoon the defense continued its effort to prove that Weekley was considered by the majority of Butler residents a man of questionable morals.

Evidently determined to match their opponents, witness for witness, on the question of Weekley's reputation, his attorneys called the first of their rebuttal witnesses who testified that the former superintendent's reputation was good.

Weekley's attorneys by their cross-examination of the defense witnesses had brought out the fact that the plaintiff's reputation was viewed differently by the opposing factions in the school fight.

A test of Weekley's blood taken at Mt. Vernon hospital and the results of this test which entered earlier testimony again became an issue in the afternoon session when the defense called Kinsey Morgan, member of the school board, to the stand.

Morgan testified on direct examination that no report of this test was presented at the meeting of the school board Oct. 6, 1941, the date Percy Crunkilton had earlier testified he brought the report directly from Mt. Vernon to the meeting. He also stated that he did not recall having seen at any time a report concerning Weekley's physical condition.

On cross-examination Morgan said he did recall Crunkilton's telling about the blood test but maintained he never saw the report.

"You knew Mr. Weekley was claiming that Dr. Reed had said he had syphilis, didn't you?" Attorney John Catlett asked.

When Morgan replied that he did, Catlett continued, "Then why didn't you go to Dr. Reed and tell him about the blood test?"

"It wasn't my business," Morgan answered.

Crunkilton was recalled to the stand then by the defense and reiterated the testimony that he had brought a report to the meeting and given it to James McFarland, then president of the school board. He testified that the blood sample was sent to Columbus and a second report of the test made there was sent later to the board.

First rebuttal witness called was McFarland who testified that Crunkilton brought him the report of the Mt. Vernon blood test and that he passed it around at the October meeting.

In attempting to prove Weekley's reputation in Butler bad the defense called to the stand Torris Beveridge, Floyd Beal, Nell Beal, Mrs. Kinsey Morgan, E. B. McFadden, Richard Darling, Clugh Taylor, Russell Strong, mayor of Butler, and Barnett Llewellyn.

To prove the opposite — that Weekley's reputation was good—the attorneys for the plaintiff called as the first of the witnesses Albert Hitchman, D. L. Wilson, former mayor of the village, Clarence Forbes, Eard Ward and Fern Hunter.

OHIO DIVISION IN MUNDA FIGHT

37th, Unit Mansfielders Were With, Helps To Capture Japanese Air Base.

Rainbow division, graduated from the command and general staff school and served with the war department general staff corps from 1932 to 1936.

The battle for Munda ended a week ago today. On that day, United States infantry elements of the 25th, 37th and 43rd divisions and the marines overran the 4,500-foot airstrip, dotted with wrecked Japanese planes.

Until Munda's capture, Bairoko Harbor to the north of it on the Kula gulf was technically the supply port for the airfield garrison although in actuality Bairoko was cut off from communication with Munda in mid-July by U. S. jungle troops. But with Munda's fall Bairoko's military importance declined and, indeed, the area constituted a potential death trap.

American forces already had one jaw set against Bairoko. Moving on it from northeast after putting ashore at Rice Anchorage on July 5.

With Munda's fall another American force began advancing northward from the airfield. It deployed around a mangrove swamp. The right flank within a few days reached a point two miles southeast of Bairoko and joined the force which came down from the northeast, effecting an encirclement.

Despite this seemingly hopeless situation from the Japanese standpoint, the enemy has put up such fierce resistance against the force which deployed to the left of the swamp that today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported it still was only half way toward its objective.

OPEN DRIVE TO MAKE COUNCIL OK PAY BOOST

Employes' Committees Plan For Open Meeting to Force Reconsideration of Bid.

action on the pay request until the 1944 budget is prepared.

Shultz said the decision was based on the belief that it would be "so near the end of the year before salary adjustments could become effective that it would not be worth while to act on the request now." The request will be given "due consideration when the new budget is prepared," he said.

Absent from the council committee session Tuesday night were James R. Anderson, member-at-large, and Paul Bush. Sixth ward. Anderson said he was working and Bush was out of the city on business.

Capt. Stahl said today that a number of Mansfield merchants had told city workers they were backing the pay increase move and he added that representatives of the retail merchants and Chamber of Commerce would be invited to the open meeting on the salary issue.

Members of the police and fire departments committee said they wanted council's "real reason" for ducking the pay boost question, asserting that they were not satisfied with the explanation offered in the council statement released by Shultz.

Members of the police and fire departments launched their drive for salary increases six weeks ago, asking for $35 a month more to meet the higher living costs. Other city employes joined the move later, most of them signing petitions which were submitted to council.

In 1600 William Gilbert conceived of the earth as a great magnet with magnetic poles and a field force about it.

WELL, HERE WE ARE... MRS. CHUTE, THIS IS LITTLE ANNIE-
HOW DO YOU DO MRS. CHUTE?
I'VE HEARD LOTS ABOUT YOU, ANNIE... I'M SURE YOU'LL LIKE IT HERE...
YOU CAN SEE IT'S NOT MUCH OF A STORE... JUST ONE CLERK, MRS. CHUTE...
BUT YOU'VE GOT EVERYTHING!! I THINK IT'S A WONDERFUL STORE-
WE USED TO DO QUITE A LOT OF BUSINESS... IT'S BEEN..ER... A BIT SLOW, LATELY...
SHUX! THINGS WILL PICK UP AGAIN... THERE ARE ALWAYS SLOW MONTHS, THEY SAY...

STEADY COURSE MAINTAINED BY STOCK MARKET

Bank Clearings Drop Off In 23 Cities, But Remain Ahead of Last Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks maintained a moderately steady course in today's early market dealings.

At a quiet opening gainers of fractions included Pepsi-Cola, N. Y. Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and Yellow Truck.

Boardroom statisticians studied the bank clearings summary of Dun & Bradstreet for the week ended Wednesday which estimated these transactions in 23 cities, while falling under the previous week's total, exceeded the aggregate in the like period a year ago by 17.5 per cent.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Removal of most marketing restrictions on corn, which many traders felt would make some of the grain available for commercial feed manufacturers, depressed grains at the opening today.

Wheat started ⅛ to ½ lower. Sept. $1.43-1.42⅞, Dec. $1.45, and rye was unchanged to ½ lower, Sept. 91⅞-98.

THEATERS

Coney Island.

"Coney Island," the 20th Century Fox technicolor musical now at the Ohio, stars Betty Grable, George Montgomery and Cesar Romero. The film has caught the hurly-burly spirit of the famous resort of New York with its beauty and high excitement. Charles Winninger and Phil Silvers top the featured cast of "Coney Island," which was directed by Walter Lang. Betty sings several new numbers including "Take It From There," "Beautiful Coney Island" and "Miss Lulu From Louisville." The last one she sings in blackface.

French Star Seen.

Pierre Aumont, who is starred in 'Assignment In Brittany," now at the Madison, was born in Paris, France. He was educated at the Conservatoire of Drama where he showed exceptional talent. After graduation he became one of the most popular actors of the Paris stage. He made 15 movies in France and was working on another when war was declared. He enlisted in the tank corps and was presented the French Croix de Guerre, for bravery. When the Nazis overran France he escaped to New York. Co-attraction with 'Assignment In Brittany" is "Border Patrol."

Shadow on Screen.

Moviegoers who have read the adventures of The Shadow in magazines and who have followed him by radio now have a chance to see him in a movie at the Ritz "The Shadow Strikes" is the first of a series of pictures produced from the original serial by the author Maxwell Grant. Rod La Rocque plays the part of the man who assists the innocent and foils the evil doer. Other Ritz attraction stars Pat O'Brien and George Brent in "Submarine D-1."

Eerie Film.

Dealing with the native Caribbean belief that the dead can be brought back to an automaton-like life R. K. O.'s "I Walked With a Zombie," opens today at the Park. Most of the action for the film is laid on a little island in the West Indies when Paul Holland, a sugar planter lives with his wife Jessica. Jessica is supposed to be a victim of unusual tropical fever. Co-attraction is a western film, "Cowboy Commandos."

CONTRACT LET FOR NEW RADIO

New York Firm To Supply New Equipment; Bates To Seek Priority Immediately.

A contract for the installation of new radio equipment for the Mansfield police department was let today to the Fred M. Link company, New York, for $4,590.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said application would be filed immediately with the War Production board for a priority, and if it's granted promptly the new equipment would be installed by the end of the summer.

The New York firm was the higher of two bidders, but Bates said the Link company had equipment that more nearly met Mansfield requirements and had agreed to install the apparatus without extra cost. The other bid was submitted by the Galvin Manufacturing company of Chicago which quoted the cost at $4,237.

Included in the equipment will be a 250-watt frequency modulation transmitter and four 35-watt mobile transmitters for police cruisers. The big transmitter will greatly increase the power of the Mansfield police station, while the cruiser units will enable police to communicate with other police cars in the city, police headquarters and the Massillon state highway patrol station if necessary.

GIRL, 17, SENT TO DELAWARE

Judge Imposes Sentence Today In Delinquency Case.

A 17-year-old girl, who has been held in the county detention home for the past two weeks pending further order of the court, was today committed to Girls' Industrial school at Delaware by Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer.

The girl had been charged with delinquency after she was found in Mansfield by juvenile officers who had been searching for her since last January when she ran away from her guardian in Mt. Gilead.

Homer Smith, in whose company the girl was found, was sentenced to six months in the Columbus workhouse.

Cleveland, Cincinnati Living Cost Drop Reported

PRICES DOWN DURING JULY, UP FOR YEAR

Labor Statistics Bureau Says Meat, Vegetable Costs Are Main Factor.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Living costs made "the first substantial decline since Pearl Harbor" last month in Cleveland and Cincinnati, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

But for the year ended July 15, costs were 7.1 per cent higher in Cleveland and 5.9 per cent higher in Cincinnati than on the same date in 1942, according to the report.

The bureau reported a 1.2 per cent drop on all items in Cleveland during the month ended July 15; food costs had dropped three per cent while clothing was down .6 per cent and electricity, ice, fuel, household furnishings and miscellaneous items remained unchanged.

The drop in Cincinnati was .6 per cent for all items, with food down 1.6 per cent while clothing costs went up .8 per cent and household items increased .2 per cent, other items remaining unchanged.

Since Aug. 15, 1939, the bureau reported, living costs in Cleveland went up 27.7 per cent and in Cincinnati, 27 per cent, while the average increase for all large cities was 25.6 per cent.

Meanwhile price administration officials claimed that total drop of 0.8 per cent in the labor department's cost of living index was evidence of a trend that will not stop until prices are back to the hold-the-line level of September, 1942.

The bureau credited OPA's cut-back of meat prices with the largest share of responsibility for the drop. Seasonally lower prices of vegetables also were factors in the decline.

The bureau's report showed that retail food prices—responsible for about two-fifths of total living costs—dropped two per cent from June 15 to July 15. Clothing costs rose 0.5 per cent and other costs were stable or increased moderately.

The bureau reported that the substantial declines for most meats in July resulted from reductions in maximum prices ordered by OPA. Fresh fish prices rose about four per cent, but chickens which were not affected by the OPA cutback dropped 0.5 per cent. Meat and fish prices on the average were down 5.5 per cent.

Diamond Island, 140 miles south of Rangoon, was a haven for giant turtles until occupied by the Japanese.

ORDINANCE NO. 43-128

By MR. VAUGHN:

Determining to proceed with the reconstruction of sanitary sewer extension from intersection of Woodhill Road to Bigelow Road northwardly to lot No. 9850 Mansfield.

Be It Ordained by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, three-fourths of all members elected thereto concurring:

Section 1: That it is hereby determined to proceed with the construction of a sanitary sewer extension from intersection of Woodhill Road and Bigelow Road northwardly to lot No. 9850 Mansfield pursuant to Resolution No. 4565 passed July 6 1943 and in accordance with the plans and specifications heretofore prepared by the engineer of said city.

Section 2: That the whole cost of said improvement less 2 per cent thereof shall be assessed upon the property benefited thereby, to-wit: all lots and lands bounding and abutting upon said proposed improvement which lots and lands are hereby determined to be specially benefitted by said improvement, the cost of said improvement shall include the expense of preliminary engineering surveys and printing and publishing notices, etc., together with the cost of construction and interest on notes and bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred assessments. The property share shall be assessed by the benefit plan.

Section 3: That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in not more than 4 annual installments with interest on deferred payments provided that the owners of the property assessed may at their option pay such assessments in cash within 30 days after the passage of the assessing ordinance.

Section 4: That the bond of the City of Mansfield shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in an amount equal thereto.

Section 5: That the remainder of the cost of said entire improvement not specially assessed shall be paid out of the General Fund.

Section 6: That the Service Director be and hereby is authorized and directed to make and execute a contract for said construction after advertisement and bids as authorized by law.

Section 7: That this ordinance be declared an emergency and in the interest and preservation of public health and safety for the reason that a health hazard must hereby be abated immediately, and that this ordinance be in full force from and after its passage.

U. S., BRITISH STAFFS CONFER

Lay Groundwork For Meeting of Churchill, Roosevelt at Quebec Citadel.

by the chiefs of staff of the United States, Great Britain and Canada, were at work in the Chateau Frontenac at the base of the 332-foot hill surmounted by the Citadel.

As far as could be learned, Russian and Chinese military and naval experts were not represented. Mr. Roosevelt had announced, with obvious regret, that Russia would have no representative at his conference with Churchill.

Political significance was attached to the continued absence of Premier-Marshal Josef Stalin of Russia from meetings of the other top leaders of the United Nations.

Some observers believed he had refused to attend, as he had refused to attend the Casablanca conference on the grounds that the military situation kept him in Russia. These observers suggested that Stalin would not be satisfied with any strategy which does not call for a second front in western Europe.

Other observers suggested that Stalin could not attend because Anglo-American plans must include the Pacific and Russia is not at war with Japan.

Churchill with Sir John Anderson attended a three-hour meeting of the Canadian war cabinet yesterday as representatives of the British war cabinet. The announcement of this meeting, which was termed a joint meeting of the Canadian and British war cabinets, said another would be held. It was believed to have dealt with the future use of Canadian troops.

It will be Mr. Roosevelt's second trip to Canada recently. It was revealed Monday that he had spent a few days fishing and resting in Ontario.

Churchill Visits Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain left today for an unannounced destination after viewing Niagara Falls from the Canadian side.

(It was announced in Quebec that Churchill was en route to meet President Roosevelt. The time and the place of the meeting were not disclosed.)

Churchill crossed to the American side of the falls after an hour-and-a-half sight-seeing trip on the Canadian side of the cataract.

He was accompanied by his daughter, Subaltern Mary Churchill of Auxiliary Territorial Service, and a large party.

Churchill, who crossed to this country by automobile, boarded his special six-car train after only a brief stay on the American side.

He viewed the falls from the Canadian side, drove through the Niagara Falls parks commission's formal gardens and motored down the Niagara river as far as Queenstown Heights, Ont., to see the whirlpool rapids below the falls.

Before boarding his train on the American side, the Prime Minister gave the "V" salute.

Boy Tells Police Talk About Lock Led to Robbery

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer today had under advisement a case involving a 15-year-old Mansfield boy who, detectives said, confessed burglarizing a room at 39½ East Fourth street and obtaining clothing and money valued at $27.50.

The boy was arrested at his home early today by police who found all of the stolen articles in his room. The clothing belongs to Charles Boyd who reported it stolen yesterday.

Judge Cramer held up disposition of the case until he questions the boy's parents.

Questioned by detectives, the youth said he was visiting a girl friend in the next room when he overheard Boyd say he wished he had a lock on his door.

The youth related that he went back the next night when Boyd was absent and took the clothing and $5 in money which belonged to Boyd's roommate.

BOY FOUND

Official's Son Reported Beaten In Westlake.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— John Buchanan, 9-year-old missing son of the chief of the food and drug administration of the city health department, was found today in a field near Westlake, shirtless, dazed and possibly beaten.

First reports said that the boy was found lying on his back in a field in suburban Westlake.

Lloyd Trunk of the Cleveland Criminal Investigation bureau said the upper part of the boy's body was covered with scratches and bruises.

Finding of the boy followed three mysterious telephone calls to E. B. Buchanan, father of the lad, from an anonymous caller or callers who gave directions for finding the boy and leading to the belief he had been kidnaped.

The boy had been missing since he left his home at 1:30 p. m. yesterday afternoon to go to Lakewood park.

HALT WAR WORK

2,200 Workers Strike At Dodge Truck Plant.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Approximately 2,200 workers struck at the Chrysler Corporation's Dodge truck plant today in what the company charged was an "obviously carefully organized and conducted" stoppage of war production.

A management statement said the plant's entire first shift stopped work at 9:15 a. m. "Simultaneously and obviously by direction," and that at 9:50 a. m. a shop committee representing the United Automobile Workers (CIO) presented the company with four demands.

ORDINANCE NO. 43-126

By MR. KYLE:

Determining to proceed with the improvement of Elmwood Drive between West Fourth street and the north boundary line of lot No. 6350 of Mansfield, Ohio, by making the necessary grading, curbing, draining and paving with concrete the width of 22 feet.

Be It Ordained by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, three-fourths of all members elected thereto concurring:

Section 1: That it is hereby determined to proceed with the improvement of Elmwood Drive between West Fourth street and the north boundary line of lot No. 6350 of Mansfield, Ohio, by making the necessary grading, curbing, draining and paving with concrete the width of 22 feet as per plans now on file in the office of the City Engineer.

Section 2: That all claims and damages resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into before commencing the proposed improvement, and the solicitor be and hereby is authorized and directed to institute proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to inquire into such claims.

Section 3: That the whole cost of said improvement less the cost of alleys and street intersections, less one-fiftieth of the remainder shall be assessed by the foot front upon the following lots and lands to-wit: all the lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed street improvement when lots and lands are hereby deemed to be specially benefitted by said improvement; and the cost of said improvement shall include the expense of preliminary and other surveys and of printing and publishing notices, resolutions, and ordinances as required by law and the serving of notices and the cost of construction together with interest on notes and bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred assessments and all other expenditures.

Section 4: That the assessment so to be levied shall be paid in 5 annual installments with interest on deferred payments at the same rate as shall be borne by the bonds to be issued in anticipation of the collection thereof, provided that the owner of any property assessed may at his option pay such assessment in cash within 30 days after the passage of the assessing ordinance.

Section 5: That bonds of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in an amount equal thereto.

Section 6: That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement not specially assessed herein, including the cost of inter-section, etc., and interest thereon shall be paid out of Registration Fee Fund.

Section 7: That this ordinance be in full force and effect from and after the earliest period allowable by law.

Canning Teachers To See How It's Done Tomorrow

Supervisors of the five community canning centers which are scheduled to open soon in Mansfield and other county towns will go to Cardington Friday to see one of the state's older canning centers in operation.

Miss Alma Garvin, chairman, and Mrs. Eunice Kochheiser, secretary, of the state food preservation committee, are expected to be at the Cardington center to conduct a questionnaire session for the visitors.

A canning center will open next Tuesday in the John Simpson Junior high school home economics rooms and others are due to go into operation soon at the Shelby, Woodville, Lucas, and Bellville schools.

Reservations for the Mansfield center must be made with the civilian defense headquarters in the city building, Mrs. Frank Schluter, Mansfield R. D. 5, is in charge of the Woodville center. Reservations may be made in the Woodville area by calling 5544-2.

ADMIT ROBBERY

Three Captured When Bullets Puncture Tires.

KIRKWOOD, Mo. —(U.P.)— Three men who have confessed to yesterday's $3,000 robbery of the People's bank at Hawk Point, Mo., are being held at Kirkwood, the state highway patrol office announced today.

The three were captured when the tires on their getaway car were punctured by shots from a pursuing patrol car, after an 85-mile-an-hour chase through Clarksville, Mo.

MORE JOBS OPEN

Civil Service Lists Positions Available In Government.

Numerous war service and old-line federal service positions are open in various towns throughout the nation including Mansfield, according to the announcement made today by F. W. Luikart, associate regional director of the Sixth U. S. Civil Service Region.

The positions are not available to men or women already employed full-time in essential war work, Luikart warned.

Steel inspectors are needed in Mansfield, he announced. The wages are $2,000 a year including overtime. Applicants must have open hearth experience.

Positions open in other cities included toolmakers, machinists, maintenance mechanics, guards, comptometer operators, chief engine mechanics, junior traffic assistants, and policewomen.

shipping, sank four enemy vessels off the Sicilian coasts.

The communique said one Allied plane was missing from the operations.

(The Italian communique as recorded by the Associated Press from a Rome broadcast said numerous buildings had been hit during the Allied raid on Terni and that losses among the population were heavy.

(It also said an Allied cruiser of 10,000 tons, another of 5,000 tons and three merchant ships were hit by Axis torpedo planes.)

Although detachments of the American Seventh army and British Eighth army had advanced within a few miles of Randazzo, Allied spokesmen warned that German remnants had dug into the city's ruins and further progress would be slow.

Increased indications that the Axis is gathering an evacuation fleet emphasized the importance of the enemy's bitter-end defense of Randazzo as a holding operation until the coastal columns can fall back upon Messina.

Randazzo is the last important highway junction southwest of Messina.

Nazis Claim U. S. Landing Repulsed

BERLIN—(By official German wireless) —(INS)— German military quarters today claimed the new American landings east of Cape Orlando in Sicily was repulsed by Nazi ground and air forces.

German and Italian troops were asserted to have withdrawn "to a shortened bridgehead position in the northeast corner of Sicily according to plan."

Unidentified Planes Cross Switzerland

LONDON —(INS)— Aircraft of unknown nationality last night violated Swiss neutrality by flying over the country at several points, an official communique from Berne said today.

The Berne announcement, reported by Reuter's, said that the Swiss skies were violated on several occasions in the vicinity of Canton and Ticino. Alerts were sounded in a number of places but no bombs were dropped.

LAMB CROP'S LOW

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting service estimated today that 1,201,000 lambs were raised in Ohio this year, compared with 1,259,000 in 1942 and a 10-year average of 1,336,000 head.

RULING ON GAS QUOTAS DUE BY END OF WEEK

OPA Chief Brown Gets Figures Showing Drop In Supply For Midwest.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown has received new figures from the petroleum administration on the amount of gasoline available for civilian use in the remainder of this year, and is now in a position to make an early and final decision on lifting of the east coast pleasure driving ban, it was learned today.

The new figures were understood to show larger amounts of gasoline available for the Atlantic seaboard, but less for the midwest and southwest. The decision on pleasure driving is expected to be announced before the end of the week.

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and his advisers have been making a comprehensive study of the gasoline situation, and any revision in gasoline regulations undoubtedly will reflect their findings. It was understood that at least part of the findings will not be made public for reasons of military security.

While the exact figures were not obtainable, the petroleum administration's data showing decreased supplies for the middle and southwest appeared to point toward greater equalization of rations as between those areas and the Atlantic seaboard. This has been urged for some time by petroleum administrator Harold L. Ickes.

Plans to equalize gasoline rationing east of the Rocky mountains, as announced by Ickes on July 17, are the result of the steadily-increasing oil movement out of the midwest and southwest to the eastern seaboard.

An important factor in making more gasoline available to the east coast has been the completion of the 24-inch pipeline from Texas to New York and Philadelphia. This has served to release railway tank cars for assignment to other areas, and has made possible the necessary transportation flexibility for an equalization program.

SOLDIER SAYS WOUNDED MEN ARE BRAVEST

Battle To Take Troina Again Proves That There Are No Atheists in Foxholes.

(A stubborn foe in strong positions sought to halt the American advance on Troina, key Nazi stronghold in Sicily. But the Yankees slugged their way through, and a reporter finds it's really true about there being no atheists in foxholes, and that a dying man's religion doesn't matter. Don Whitehead writes another great story of how American's act when the going's tough).

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE AEF AT TROINA, Aug 6. —(Delayed) — (AP) — My friend, a blue-eyed lad in blood-stained fatigues, slid down the bank on the ridgetop before Troina and talked with us while Germans laid mortar shells around our position. We had been helping evacuate wounded from the battlefield, carrying them on doors and tabletops.

When the shrapnel stopped buzzing around heads began popping up from foxholes and stone shelters. I felt calm and steady after the shelling, but when I lit a cigaret for Jack Belden, of Time and Life magazines, my fingers trembled.

The young soldier, Second Lieut. Claus Anderson of Kenosha, Wis., must have noticed it.

"You know," he said, "it's true there are no atheists in foxholes. I found that out yesterday on the next ridge."

Anderson and Corp. Wayne Palmer of Ladysmith, Wis., were in a gully under machinegun fire trying to dress the wounds of a comrade who had been hit in the side. They carried him into a stone shack nearby while Germans sniped at them.

"There were five wounded men in the place and others in the field nearby," Anderson said. "Palmer never refused to go anywhere. I never saw a man with more guts. He kept bringing wounded men off the field although he'd been nicked by a bullet himself. We used up all our bandages and all the Heinie bandages we picked up, too."

"Yeah," said Lieut. Stan Mastyl of Philadelphia. "It was a tough spot. The boys had plenty of guts, and what about Kelly? There's a soldier for you. Ralph refused to leave his machinegun post until all the riflemen were out and he had no support himself." He was talking of Corp. Ralph Kelly of Emmetsburg, Maryland.

Mastyl and Palmer were with the wounded in the shack all day while Germans shelled the area and machinegunned anyone who came into the open. They tried to reach one wounded man but were driven back by machinegun fire each time they came out of the shack.

"Nobody's got more guts than a wounded man," Anderson observed. "And as I said, there are no atheists in foxholes. We thought one of the men was dying. We all said a prayar for him.

"There were a couple of Catholics there. They read a prayer from a book. I don't think the wounded man was a Catholic, but nobody cared what his religion was. It didn't matter, did it? I said no, it didn't matter.

A radio report came from Capt. Robert Tutler, of Washington, Mo., that Germans were counter-attacking the ridge his men held just beyond our position. This was in mid-morning yesterday — the day the Troina line cracked. But in mid-morning there was still strong enemy resistance and our artillery kept pounding away.

Major Charles (Chuck) Horner of Doylestown, Pa., battalion commander, called for an artillery concentration on the reverse slope of Tutler's Hill, and the shells whined over us.

"That got 'em," Tutler said. "They're pulling back now."

"Okay," Horner said, "we'll keep pouring it to them and chase them out. How are you?"

"I'm all right," Tutler said, "there are Heinies all around us everywhere. They're stubborn as hell."

Machinegun fire rattled over the top of our ridge and bullets whined over. No one paid any attention to this litle stuff. Around us soldiers slept in foxholes, too tired even to move the rocks from under their bodies.

You wondered how they endured attack night after night, the seemingly never-ending marching across gullied valleys and steep rocky ridges, the continual pounding of artillery and rattle of machineguns.

For five days they had gone without cigarets and had eaten when and if their food caught up with them. They'd slept on the ground with only a blanket to cover them and sometimes not even that because they didn't want to carry the extra weight. But they were tough, and they gave the enemy no rest.

One soldier said he had not had his shoes off in 21 days. "I'm afraid if I take them off," he smiled ruefully, "that I'll never get them back on."

The sun was sinking when a formation of 12 B-25s thundered over. They flew to the north, made a wide circle and came back over Troina. Bombs showered from their bellies. Explosions started on the hill below the city and ran up over it, flinging up great columns of gray smoke.

Fifteen minutes later the dive-bombers came lancing out of the sky. Explosions boiled up beneath them as they leveled off and roared toward the south.

The war on land came to a halt as soldiers stopped open-mouthed to watch the destruction of the enemy forces.

CRESTLINE CLUB HOLDS MEETING

CRESTLINE—"Recreation and Its Needs in the Community" was the subject of Atty. John Berger, jr., when he appeared as guest speaker at a meeting of the Lay Health committee Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. B. Smith. A general discussion of the topic followed.

Mrs. Smith presided for the meeting and the subject of community canning was also discussed.

Charges Bricker Uses State Highway Department as 'Tool'

men, officials of the G. O. P. central committee, lame duck judges and prosecutors.

The article added that in some instances, political jobholders received pay from the state but devoted their time doing private work for Bender.

In other instances, it said, jobholders on the state payroll, instead of working for the state, spend their time on jobs in private industry and draw two pay checks.

The paper accused some Republican jobholders in the highway department of doing "nothing at all." It said the employes merely call for their pay checks every two weeks saving them from having to take war jobs.

It stated that many of the jobholders, who do little or nothing for the state, have used highway connections to obtain C gasoline rations.

Investigation of highway department payroll records, the paper said, disclosed that in Cuyahoga county alone, jobs had been parceled out to Republican leaders and precinct committeemen half of whom are under civil service despite their political connections.

A United Press dispatch from Columbus today said that Highway Director Sours has been ordered to make a thorough investigation of charges made by the Cleveland Press.

Governor Bricker has made a blanket denial of all charges contained in the Press story. He disclosed that he and Sours and Robert E. Willems, head of the highway district of which Cuyahoga county is a part, will confer today.

"No law violations will be countenanced," Bricker said. "I have ordered that all offenders be cleaned out."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1943.

Odd, but you may have noticed that the less authority a man has, the more he displays it.

A modern Diogenes might prefer going around looking for a man who "wants but little here below."

Word comes from Odessa, Tex., that a movement is on in the south to have the prefix "dam" dropped from the word "damyankee," for the duration, thus evidencing a spirit of unity in an unexpected quarter.

Draft of Fathers Still Undecided

HOWEVER much they may be interested, and concerned, most people are unable to make heads or tails out of the situation that has developed in connection with the proposed drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers under the age of 38.

After shifting one way and another on the subject, October 1 was recently announced as the "definite" date on which draft of fathers would be started, but congress is now showing inclination to legislate against this application of selective service until all other sources of military manpower have been exhausted.

Some congressmen and senators even go so far as to say that the proposed army will be too large and that all actual military needs can be met without the break-up of homes that would result from draft of fathers.

What seems generally agreed upon is that the nation's security must be given first consideration, and that in the event of dire emergency, fathers and older men would be expected to serve, to the extent of their ability, in whatever military or civilian capacity they might be assigned.

There is practically equal agreement that family life should be left as undisturbed as possible and that fathers, either pre- or post-Pearl Harbor, should be used in essential war work in their own communities, where they have homes established, rather than being called for military service, if this can be avoided.

It has been stated that probably only about one man in twenty among fathers would be drafted, which suggests that the need may be limited and that other means of meeting it can be found.

Selection of one out of twenty fathers among registrants would place a heavy burden on draft boards, which would be required to consider and pass upon each case.

A point that seems neglected thus far is better understanding of probable needs for American manpower as related to needs for war materials and food from this country, so that more definite rules of procedure can be formulated to meet ALL requirements, rather than emphasizing one to the neglect of others.

Sugar Shortage 'Planned That Way'

WHILE there's talk about a "sugar shortage," with quite general need for more sugar for canning and other household uses, it is interesting, but not especially pleasant, to read that a new sugar beet factory in Nampa, Idaho, erected less than a year ago at a cost of $2,000,000, will stand idle this fall when it should be converting beets into needed sugar.

The reason given by Earl Marsing, area agriculture agent for the company that owns the plant, is that arbitrary government reductions in sugar beet acreage prevented growers from raising enough beets to justify operation of the plant.

Reasons for restricting the domestic beet sugar output, so as to protect the market of Cuban sugar growers, are probably too complicated for other than government super-intellectuals to understand, but Ohio's experience with bonus payments for NOT raising sugar beets has been such as to make this a subject of lively interest in this state as well as in Idaho, and elsewhere over the country.

Lack of Training Dangerous

ACCIDENTAL discharge of a shotgun by a 16-year-old Ashland boy, resulting in critical injury to his 15-year-old sister, is one of those distressing happenings which are given no more than casual attention outside of the communities in which they occur.

Possession of a shotgun, or other dangerous weapon, is only one of the hazards resulting from entrusting children with privileges and responsibilities before they have received the training, acquired the knowledge and developed the judgment needed to safeguard themselves and those about them.

Just as a baby must learn to walk, older children must take slow steps toward physical and mental maturity. Much sorrow is caused, many prisons are filled and serious problems are created by those who attain physical maturity without the mental and spiritual development essential to maintenance of principles of self government and recognition of the rights of others.

Restoring the Normandie

THE NORMANDIE, former queen of the French fleet of passenger steamers, is coming to life again after her long sleep. She is floating, and has been raised from a 79-degree angle to one of only 45 degrees, with hope for a slow rise to vertical position. Ninety-three pumps are pouring muddy water out of her hold.

Many people seem to feel that her rise at this time is a sign of the return of France to her proper station. Without attaching any such symbolic or mystic significance to the fact that the engineers have been able to get her boosted up a bit at this time, hope of her restoration to usefulness is a great satisfaction to everyone who has followed her course from the day of the fire to the present moment.

Bombs Fall Where Columbus Played

THE R. A. F. bombarded Genoa the other day, in a raid which included Turin and Milan. This is getting unpleasantly close to home.

Perhaps the British should be given a gentle hint to go just a little easy on Genoa, for old time's sake. That is where Christopher Columbus was born, nearly 500 years ago. Millions of Americans have made pilgrimages there, admiring the clean modern city and staring, almost incredulously, at the marble buildings on the waterfront that may have been there, shining white in the Italian sun, when little barefoot Christopher played around with his pals.

It doesn't mean so much to the British. And even American flyers, perhaps, could bomb it without much compunction. But it seems a pity.

WHAT DOES THE SENTRY THINK?

Quick Move Against Hitler Seen As Logical Next Step By Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

FOR ONCE Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill are going into conference without employing the customary smoke-screen of secrecy, and as a matter of fact haven't even attempted to conceal the approach of what is likely to be one of the most momentous meetings of the war.

This doesn't mean that the forthcoming parley will be held in the open for all to hear. We are left to figure out for ourselves what questions will be debated at this critical moment. Still, the trend of events indicate that there are at least two major problems with which the conference will be concerned, and they are these:

1. The opening up of that much and warmly debated front in western Europe, so as to capitalize to the full the amazing success of the Red offensive.

2. The post-war policy which will bring the best co-operation among the United States, Russia and Britain in particular, and the other Allies in general. This contemplates the probability that the Muscovites are likely to emerge from the war as the dominant power both in Europe and the Orient.

These questions would seem to be urgent because of the unexpected speediness of the Allied successes both in Russia and in the Mediterranean theater. Plans which were made at the last meeting of the Allied chiefs presumably need bringing up to date.

FROM the military standpoint the question would seem to be what we do when we have finished with Sicily. There has been considerable talk of a quick invasion of the Italian mainland, to take advantage of the patent weakness there. However, the more one contemplates the task of invading and subduing the peninsula as the next major move, the less attractive it appears—a lot of labor for a return of doubtful value. The conquest of Italy has lost much of its fire, what with the deflation of Mussolini and the relegation of Fascism to the ash-can.

The Nut we want to crack is Hitler, and we want to get at him the quickest way possible. The Russians again are urgently pointing out that the speedy way to smash the fuehrer is to open up that new front in France, while the Red armies have the Nazis on the run in the east. This would place the boche between two mighty mill-stones.

That's a logical move, providing the Anglo-American Allies are capable of undertaking what undoubtedly would be one of the greatest and most dangerous operations of the whole war—a landing in France from England.

The consensus of military men all along has been that the only way to defeat Hitler is to annihilate his armies on the battle field, and this would involve an invasion of Europe through the historic war routes of France, if the war isn't to drag on interminably.

If the Allies are to undertake such an invasion it can't long be delayed. The summer is rushing by with its good fighting weather, and the opportunity presented by the Russian offensive may slip away with the arrival of autumn.

OCCUPATION of the Italian peninsula wouldn't take us appreciably nearer our main objective. On the contrary, now that the Germans have been able to fortify the line of the Po river across northern Italy, the conquering of the country would take considerable time and involve heavy fighting.

The Allies might be able to take over the lower three-quarters of Italy below the Po defenses without a prolonged struggle. But what would that get us? The only military objectives of great value are those which are in the hands of the boche north of the Po. When we had fought our way up to the Po we should find that our main achievement had been to saddle ourselves with the government and maintenance or maybe 33,000,000 out of Italy's population of 43,000,000.

Invasion of the Balkans next wouldn't bring against Hitler from two sides the quick and heavy pressure which Moscow believes would wind the war up quickly.

The alternative seems to be a blow through France, and one would expect this to figure largely in the Roosevelt-Churchill conference.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL the Normandie is afloat again and if nobody throws a match and the money doesn't run out she'll be worth twice her weight in pickled herring.

* * *

She may cost us fifty million dollars and that's a lot of green waves to float the barnacles off a second-hand car with busted fenders and no windshield.

* * *

When the navy got her she was named Normandie. They renamed her Lafayette. Ten minutes later they looked around and said "Lafayette—we are here but where are you?"

* * *

They never identified the workman who flipped the match that set the fire that brought the water that sank the Normandie but we know who he was.

* * *

He was a descendant of the fellow who tended Mrs. O'Leary's cow.

* * *

We have examined all the reasons for raising the Normandie and have eliminated all but one.

* * *

They want to see what's under her.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Aug. 12, 1923.

Kenneth L. Bell suffered leg and eye injuries in automobile accident on Springmill road.

Thomas A. Edison visited his birthplace in Milan after having been in Marion to attend funeral of President Harding.

N. W. Shultz of Shreve observed 84th birthday anniversary while here for a visit with his son, C. N. Shultz, Helen avenue.

One hundred and twelve Mansfielders went to Chicago on Pennsylvania railroad excursion.

Burton Preston, sr., and son, Burton, went to Buffalo, N. Y., to attend national granite dealers' convention.

Birth report: Son to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stutz, 644 Bowman street.

Miss Adelaide Robinson went to New York to start rehearsals in the Ziegfeld revue, "Nifties of 1923."

TODAY IN HISTORY

An armistice brought an end to the Spanish-American war, Aug. 12, 1898.

Dave Boone Says:

I'M GLAD the president got away from his heavy cares of office long enough to do a little fishing. Any man is better able to handle a tough job better after he's been fishing. It's good for the brain, the body and the soul.

* * *

In fact, if more world leaders were fishermen there would be fewer wars. Take Benito and Adolf—they never go fishing.

* * *

You can't catch fish through a mike and no amount of yelling can make 'em take the bait.

* * *

The side with the most fishermen on it will win this war. "Blood, sweat and tears"—that's our slogan. But bait, patience and fishpoles" can't be tossed aside.

* * *

"Contacted big school of fish early today; sharp engagement followed. We had advantage of surprise, but fish put up stubborn resistance and escaped. Losses on both sides were slight. Three of our bass plugs are missing.

What a relief to read that kind of a communique!

Readmission of Lewis to AFL Blocked By White House Move

WASHINGTON—When members of the AFL executive council took up the application of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chief, for re-entry into the AFL this week in Chicago, they didn't bother to tell reporters that Lewis might have been back in the AFL some time before, except for strong intervention from the White House.

It can now be revealed that the president was extremely perturbed about the burly mine labor chief's efforts to climb back on the AFL bandwagon. In fact he expressed himself to friends in very blunt language about how foolhardy it would be for the AFL to welcome back a man who was in disrepute for openly defying the government during the mine dispute.

It also can be revealed that William Hutcheson, AFL carpenters' boss, and other Lewis friends on the executive council had the stage all set for a special meeting of the council last May to consider Lewis's application. This was the inside reason why John L. enclosed a fat $60,000 check for advance dues with his application.

Just who blocked the move—and how closely the president himself was involved—is a secret. But administration insiders report that Marvin McIntyre, the president's secretary, a great friend of the railroad brotherhoods, had a hand in it.

Furthermore, immediately after Lewis requested readmission, the president had separate conferences with Dan Tobin, teamsters' boss and a top-rung member of the AFL executive council, plus George Harrison, railway clerks' head, who is the most powerful figure in the brotherhoods.

Immediately afterward, the move for a special executive council meeting was abandoned. In the course of one of these conferences, the question of Lewis's application for readmission was discussed at some length—and the president expressed himself point-blank against it.

Unenergetic Hopkins.

WHEN Winston Churchill was last in Washington, one very private luncheon he attended was with President Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and Bernie Baruch, the elderly but energetic pusher of war production.

Baruch was discussing his favorite theme, more munitions, speedier munitions, and better munitions. Among other things he pointed out, what now has just been officially announced, that American airplane production would reach more than 7,000 planes in July, but that if certain short cuts had been made, this total would have been more than 8,000.

"Good Lord, Bernie," sighed Harry Hopkins, "aren't you ever satisfied?"

Churchill and Roosevelt both looked surprised, but made no comment at the satisfied Mr. Hopkins' remark.

John L. Lewis Purrs.

A THRONG of spectators flocked to John L. Lewis's meeting with the War Labor board to discuss portal-to-portal pay, but much to their disappointment, the expected fireworks didn't develop. The bushy-browed mine labor chief was courtesy personified.

At one time he said in a low, syrupy voice to WLB Chairman William H. Davis, whom he had once described as a "Park Avenue lawyer on the loose in Washington against labor."

"Mr. Chairman, I have some statistics here I would like to present, but I don't want to bore you with them. I promise to take very little of your time."

Spectators' titters broke into laughs at Davis, not to be outdone, unctiously replied:

"That's all right, Mr. Lewis—perfectly all right. Take all the time you want."

Capital Chaff.

MANHATTAN Banker Jimmy Warburg was not only the mysterious fictitious "John Durfee," spanked by the president for calling Victor Emmanuel the "moronic little king," but he also was the fictitious "Wallace Herrick" . . . Warburg has so dominated OWI's foreign broadcasts that some people call it the "Office of Warburg Information." . . . South Carolina's Senator Maybank recently telephoned aides of South Carolina's Jimmy Byrnes expressing surprise that they were peeved over his anti-Byrnes, anti-Roosevelt voting. "Why didn't you call me up before the vote?" Maybank said. They replied: "We knew we had to worry about our enemies, but since when have we had to worry about our friends?" . . . One reason Turkey has been reluctant to enter the war is the extreme inflammability of Istanbul's crowded, wooden houses. They would go up like tinder if bombed.

Inflation Remedy.

THE PRESIDENT has a non-inflationary solution to organized labor's demands for wage increases to meet higher living costs — namely, non-negotiable bonds, payable after the war.

Roosevelt revealed this secret during a confidential talk with R. J. Thomas, president of the United Auto Workers Union, on price rollbacks, strikes and the War Labor Board's Little Steel formula. Here is the summary of his views.

Prices. Roosevelt stated that he would make a vigorous attempt to roll back prices. He told Thomas that he would prefer that congress provide the money, but that, failing this, he would use either F.F.C. or Commodity Credit Corporation funds to restore the following foods to their September, 1942 normal: Meat, canned goods, potatoes, milk and milk products.

It would be too difficult, the president said, to attempt a rollback of clothing and personal services. He pointed out that rents already have been rolled back to March, 1941.

Little Steel Formula. Roosevelt frankly stated that he was not enthusiastic about any arbitrary ceiling on wages—15 per cent above those prevailing in January, 1941. However, he considered the Little Steel Formula the best brake on wage inflation so far proposed.

Instead, the president suggested that war workers would be much better off, and that the present wage stalemate between labor unions and the WLB could be broken, if workmen agreed to accept non-negotiable bonds, payable after the war, in lieu of wage increases.

More About Russia

EVERY big city in America today is wrestling with the juvenile delinquency problem. This does not mean young people in their twenties. It means organized gangs of thieves and killers of 14 and 15, even 12 and 13. And, in their formative years before that, it means helpless babies lying untended in their cribs for hours while their mothers gad the streets or hold down a job somewhere. Later, at 6 or 7, those babies—if they have survived—are swarming through back alleys, absorbing the gutter filth in their spirits as well as their flesh. Yes, America the enlightened, is paying a terrible price in tears and cash for its neglected children.

There is something we can learn from Russia. Again I am quoting from James E. Brown's book "Russia Fights" (Scribner's). The laws for the care and protection of Russian women and children recognize that delinquency begins with diapers.

The working Russian mother does not leave her baby at home with some careless neighbor or ignorant child when she goes to her factory bench or office. She takes that baby with her. If it is an infant it is put into the nursery provided by the industry of which she is a part. James Brown describes one of these nurseries.

"The foreman conducted me upstairs to a spacious, well lighted room where nurses in white uniforms were tending the babies of women who worked in the factory. There were 33 children ranging in age from infants in cradles to boys and girls 2 and 3 years old. Everything was spotlessly clean and a nurse was supervising the play of the older children. The foreman told me there was a small park in the rear of the factory where the children were taken to play.

"We give them a hot meal at noon and pay careful attention to their health," the foreman said.

"It looks as if they were better off here than they would be at home."

"That is true," said the foreman. "It's a good system and judging from our own standpoint we find that women naturally work better when they are not worried about their children."

"This is a state-owned institution and does not need to make profits, but do you think private owned factories abroad could afford to install creches?"

"I think they would be worthwhile even under the capitalistic system," she said, "especially for factories employing large numbers of women. It would improve efficiency and reduce absenteeism, besides creating good will."

"How much time does a woman get off when she is pregnant?" I asked.

"We give two months leave with pay before the baby is born and a month afterward."

In addition to that, Russian mothers leave their work at regular hours to nurse their babies and play with them, taking them home when their shift is done.

Russia has learned that law-respecting citizenship begins in the cradle. Think it over.

Fine Spirit of Wounded Soldiers Impresses Ernie While He's In Hospital.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—All my life I have enjoyed being in hospitals, as soon as the original moaning-and-groaning stage was past, and my recent time at a front-line army clearing station was no exception.

On the third day I was scared to death that I was well enough to leave. But the doctor looked thoughtful and said he wanted me to stay another day. I would have kissed him, if he had been a nurse instead of a man with a mustache and a stethoscope.

That was the only trouble with our hospital, it didn't have any nurses. In fact we lacked a number of the usual hospital touches. We were hidden, inevitably, in an olive grove, and our floors were merely the earth. The toilet was a ditch with canvas around it. And if you washed you did so in your own steel helmet. There were no such things as hospital pajamas or bathrobes. I arrived in my army coveralls and left in my coveralls, and I never once had them off all the time I was there.

During the day they kept the sides of our tent rolled up, and it was pleasant enough lying there with nothing to do. But at night the tent had to be tightly closed for the blackout, and it became deadly stuffy.

And all night long the litter-bearers would be coming and going with new wounded. It made an eerie scene in the dim glow of our single lantern, and sleep was almost impossible.

So the last couple of night we moved our cots outdoors and slept again under the wide starry skies of Sicily, and attendants brought our medicine out there in the dark. German bombers came over but we just lay there. Every morning a chaplain would come around with a big boxful of cigarets, tooth powder and stuff.

The doctor had me on a liquid diet at first, but I gradually talked him into advancing me a soft diet and finally to a regular one. That progression from liquid to soft to regular diet was one of the greatest experiences of my life, for, believe it or not, they were all three exactly the same thing—soup and canned tomato juice.

When I accused the doctor of duping me he grinned and said: "Well, it comes under the heading of keeping the patient happy by pretending to humor his whims."

Happy! I was hungry! But as you see I survived, and actually I must say I have never been treated more grandly anywhere than by those doctors and men.

DURING the time I lay at the clearing station with my own slight aches and pains, hundreds of wounded soldiers passed through on their way back to hospitals in the rear. I was in one of five small tents in which they were deposited on litters while waiting for ambulances, so I lay right among them for four days and nights. It couldn't help but be a moving and depressing experience, and yet there was something good about it too.

The two main impressions I got out of it were (1) the thoughtful and attentive attitude of the doctors and ward-boys toward the wounded men, and (2) the grand spirit of the wounded men themselves. I'll write tomorrow about the second these two.

As pitiful as wounded men are, it is easy to become hardened and cross with so many passing through your hands. You could eventually get to hate them and look upon them all as just so many nuisances who came deliberately to cause you more work. Yet the ward-boys treated their wounded as though they were members of their own family.

I paid particular attention as I lay there, and no wounded man ever made a request that a ward-boy didn't go jumping to fulfill.

This was especially true of the wardmasters, who are responsible for whole tents. There were three that impressed me greatly.

One was Corp. Herman Whitt, of Enid, Okla. Before the war he was a salesman for a biscuit company. He married a beautiful Indian girl back home. Corporal Whitt is tall, nice-looking, and talks very slowly and softly. He says he feels better about the war doing this job for caring for the wounded than if he were up there killing people himself.

Our night wardmaster was Corp. Woodrow Cox of Milo, Okla. He too is taller than six feet, and he was a ranch hand back home, yet his voice is almost like a musical instrument, and he talks with that snail-like Oklahoma drawl that is so soothing in times of excitement.

The third was Corp. Rodney Benton, of Oklahoma City. You could see the difference between city and country in these boys. Rodney was all git up and git. He talked faster and moved faster than the others. But all three had the same deep conscientiousness in their work and their feeling for the wounded.

EAGLE HATCHED IN INCUBATOR

Bird Believed To Be the First Ever Raised Artificially.

(By International News Service)

BOULDER, Col.—Smokey, believed to be the only eagle ever hatched in an incubator, is reported by his proud foster-parents, Verna Mace and Malcolm Jollie, to be doing "very well, thank you." Mace and Jollie are graduate students in biology at the University of Colorado.

While previous attempts have been made to hatch eagle eggs in an incubator, as far as is known failure always resulted.

The extreme care exercised with Smokey, now five weeks old, illustrates how difficult it is to raise a wild bird in domestic environment.

The egg which produced Smokey was kept at a constant temperature of 102 degrees Fahrenheit during the incubation period. After being hatched the bird was kept for two weeks more in a box with a constant temperature of 90 degrees.

Mace explained that eagles are carnivorous but not just any kind of meat is adequate for their diet. For the most part Smokey has been fed on white rats, those killed after experimental work in the biology department at the university.

"Luckily for Smokey," said Miss Mace, "you don't need a red ration stamp to get rat meat."

"Eaglets must eat some bones to assure development of their own bone structure," Miss Mace elaborated. "Then they require animal fur to supply roughage. To compensate for lack of exposure to the sun in his early days, we also added a small amount of cod liver oil to Smokey's diet."

Jollie and Miss Mace obtained the egg which produced Smokey from a cliff nest in the rugged foothills north of Boulder. On a field trip to obtain pictures of eagles at various ages, they watched the nest for about two hours after the adult birds left it. When the parents failed to return, the biology students decided to remove the egg, which by that time was cold.

FDR DECLINES OHIOAN'S OFFER TO PURCHASE TWO DOZEN EGGS

(By United Press)

PAINESVILLE — Franklin D. Roosevelt's job is still president of the United States and he's not interested in entering the poultry business—yet.

David E. Bollinger, Painesville newspaperman, discovered that when he read a dispatch quoting the president as saying he had no personal knowledge of an egg shortage.

"In fact," Bollinger said the president related in the story, "we have plenty in our Hyde Park home, and we even sell some of them."

Bollinger wrote the president asking for two dozen eggs and enclosing $1.25 to cover costs. Today, he received his answer on White House stationery:

"The president asks me to thank you for your letter of July 25 and to tell you that he very much regrets he has no eggs which he can sell.

"His small farm at Hyde Park does not regularly sell eggs except at such times as the president and his family are not there—and he does not sell above the regular price. I am, therefore, returning the $1.25 in postage stamps.

"Very sincerely yours, (Signed) Grace G. Tully, private secretary."

When Bowels Refuse to Move Easily—Watch Out!

Forcing! Straining! — a Common cause of Hemorrhoids—Here's Easy Quick Way to Moisten Hard Dry Passages

When because of constipation you wake up mornings feeling half sick, headachy, with a stomach that rebels at food, tongue coated, bad breath; upset and "out-of-sorts" — bowel movements an effort—you want relief and you want it fast.

In a glass of hot water put one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts and drink. 15 to 20 minutes later follow with your usual breakfast cup of hot coffee or tea. Moisture is promptly fed into those hard, dry wastes softening them so they can be more gently and easily expelled. Usually within 30 minutes you get glorious relief and should begin to feel bright and refreshed again.

Take only as directed. Try Kruschen for 5 days—for you can so regulate the dose as to bring about that "easy" movement such as you have long desired.

Don't delay — Get Kruschen Salts for prompt and effective relief from forcing and straining. Ask for it today at any drug store. (Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store.)

LIEUT. JUNE DEVORE WEDS LIEUT. MINIX

Announcement Made of Military Wedding Performed at Camp Atterbury, Indiana, for Former Mansfield Girl and Kentucky Man.

WORD reaches here of the military wedding of Lieut. June DeVore, Army Nurse Corps, daughter of Mrs. Hazel DeVore, 679 Springmill street, and Lieut. William Minix, of Scottsville, Ky. The ceremony was performed on June 30 at 6 p. m. at the post chapel of the 1560th service unit at Camp Atterbury, Ind., by Chaplain O. F. Bohman.

Attending the couple were Captain and Mrs. James Bryant. The bride wore her army nurse uniform with a corsage of sweetheart roses and baby breath. Preceding the ceremony a half hour program of nuptial music was played by the chapel organist, Cpl. L. Schimlar, former organist at Radio City Music Hall, New York City.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Officers' club for 150 guests. The buffet table was decorated with a three tiered wedding cake. Later in the evening the couple left for a wedding trip to Louisville and Scottsville, Ky.

The bride is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and City hospital, Springfield, O. For the past year she has been a member of the Army Nurse Corps and has been stationed at Camp Atterbury. The groom was graduated from Scottsville high school and has been a member of the U. S. army for the past six years. He received his commission in the medical corps in 1941. Both lieutenants are with the 1560th service unit.

Mrs. W. G. Morkel Entertained at Saltzgaber Home

Mrs. Wilton Morkel, nee Joyce Hertel, was entertained last evening at a post-nuptial party given at the home of Mrs. Robert Saltzgaber, 110 Blymyer avenue. Mrs. John Brown was the associate hostess. Cards were the diversion after which the hostess served a luncheon at the small tables.

Green and yellow was the color scheme used for the decorations. The guests presented Mrs. Morkel with a shower of miscellaneous gifts and the hostesses gave her a wedding gift.

The young couple is at home now at 99 Luther avenue.

Beauty Begins With Bathing

Getting ready for a date should mean much more than putting on a pretty dress and careful makeup. Those are the final motions but not the first, for true beauty begins with simple, shining, soap and water cleanliness.

To make that special occasion twice as enjoyable take a bath an hour or so beforehand. You'll be amazed—at what it does for you! For your digestion's sake it is best to bath before a meal, or not sooner than one hour after it.

Relax in water that has been tempered to body heat, then soap and scrub until your skin glows. Finish with cool water and energetic toweling with a big, clean spongy bath towel. Clean underwear is next on the program. To omit it is to lose half the bath's refreshing effects.

Then and then only are you ready for outward adornment. Your escort may wonder why you look so lovely but you'll know it's because you have given your skin a chance. It is really clean and that's the beginning of true loveliness.

BLOOD DONORS READY

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus prepared today for the third Red Cross blood donors service by receiving registrations for the visit of the mobile unit next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

MEET FRIDAY

WILLARD—The Tuesday club's annual picnic will be held at the home of Mrs John E Wise Friday at 1 p. m.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, August 13.

An extraordinary congeries of astral forces unite to make this a day in which the business and practical energies as well as the social, sentimental, intellectual and spiritual forces are geared to high tempo and loftly objectives. Under this show of concentrated resources, success and advanced ideas may be made realties in whichever channels the crystallized faculties may be turned. New propositons projects and aspirations are especially favored, including new loves and romantic adventures. Seek these with assurance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which all the aspirations, ideals and practical constructive energies and faculties may find outlet for expression, albeit under high tension, and with crystallized force and initiative, for attaining the goal of hearts desire. Particularly are the emotional artistic, social and creative avenues of expression under keen stimuli for accomplishment. New and significant things are favored, with the romantic urges and love emotions seeking fulfillment in high adventure, or perhaps spiritual attainment and joys.

Committee Gives Party for Guests

Eleven members of the membership committee of the Women of the Moose entertained their husbands early in the week with a picnic party at the Ed Wyllie cottage, Mifflin lake. Other guests were Betty Roth, Pearl LeConte and Fred Roth, local governor of the Moose lodge. Mrs. Helen Jenkins presided for the business session at which time plans were made to hold a rummage sale soon.

Two blood donors for the month were announced by the chairman of that committee. Club prizes were won by Mrs. Gladys Stone and Mrs. Hazel Tupps. The next meeting will be held at the same place with Mrs. Wyllie and Mrs. Norma Schuff as hostesses on Sept. 13 for a corn and wiener roast.

BIBLE CLASS PARTY.

Twenty-three members of the Ladies' Bible class of the Mayflower Congregational church and their guests were entertained Wednesday noon with a picnic at Johns park. The long table was decorated with garden flowers. A business session was held in charge of the vice president, Mrs. F. B Poling. The afternoon was spent socially. The next meeting will be held Sept. 3 at the home of Mrs. Mary Brewer, 631 Arlington avenue, with Mrs Emil Aderman as associate hostess.

'Mirror, Mirror, on the Wall—'

"—Who is the fairest one of all?" Unlike the mirror in the story of Snow White, this looking-glass tells a different tale—how a WAC may at all times present a smart, military appearance. This mirror "that-talks-back" is on the wall of a service club at Fort Des Moines, Ia., Women's Army corps training center.

Lois Eileen Martin Weds Steubenville Man In Lucas

Traditional white satin was worn by Miss Lois Eileen Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin of Lucas, for her marriage to Pvt. Nick Kosko of Steubenville, last evening when nuptial vows were read before the altar of the Lucas Congregational church. Rev. John Peyton officiated for the candlelight service at 8:30 in the presence of many relatives and friends.

The former Miss Martin's gown was fashioned Princess style and her illusion veil was of finger length. She carried a bouquet of gardenias. Attending her was her sister-in-law, Mrs Frank H Marton of Lucas, who wore a formal gown of teal blue. Her flowers were roses.

Bouquets of mixed summer flowers decorated the altar. Best man for Pvt. Kosko was Donald Duncan, of Ashland, cousin of the bride.

Following the services a wedding supper was served at the Martin home for members of the immediate families. Later the couple left for a trip to Michigan. Upon their return they will reside near Camp McCall, N. C., where Pvt. Kosko is stationed. For traveling the bride wore a black ensemble with white accessories.

Mrs. Kosko was graduated from the Lucas high school and her husband from the Steubenville high school. The bride has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

VESPER SERVICE.

Members of the Lexington 4-H club held a vesper service at the home of Miss Eileen Mentzer last evening in honor of their mothers. Miss Dorothy Auker conducted the program. Following the entertainment a social hour was enjoyed at which time refreshments were served. The advisor, Mrs. Serf, was presented with a gift from the group.

Margaret Crowl Feted at Party Given by Mother

Miss Margaret Crowl, bride-elect of Melvin W. Krutsinger, Arthur, Ill., was feted last evening at a party given by her mother, Mrs. C. E. Crowl, 236 Bartley avenue. Guests were former classmates of the young woman. Early in the evening she was surprised with a shower of miscellaneous gifts from the group.

Contests were the diversion with prizes presented to Miss Eileen House, Mrs. Wallace Crowl, and Miss Maxine Callahan, who gave them to the honored guest. Mrs. Crowl gave her daughter a gift of linen.

When refreshments were served the table was decorated with tall lighted tapers and a wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Other appointments were in pink and white.

Miss Crowl and Mr. Krutsinger will exchange nuptial vows Sunday, Sept. 5, before the altar of the Park Avenue Baptist church at 3 o'clock.

HOMEMAKING COMMITTEE.

Regular meeting of the homemaking committee of the Women of the Moose was held Wednesday evening at Middle park for a picnic supper. Garden flowers were used to decorate the table. The business session was in charge of the chairman, Miss Marie Barrett. The next meeting will take place Sept. 8 at the Middle park for a picnic at 6.30 p. m.

Health, Beauty Lie In Special Care of Hands

Your fingers may be soft as silk, and your nails well manicured, but your doctor won't compliment you on your hands unless they are thoroughly clean. The tongue may be the "unruly member" of the body in the Biblical sense, but it is the hands that can do the most damage to health.

"Germs go only where they are carried by animate carriers—persons, animals, or insects," a sanitarian said recently. "Of course some diseases are carried by cats, dogs, mosquitoes, flies, lice, ticks, rats, etc.; but the human carrier is the chief offender, and the human carrier does his work largely with contaminated hands."

Frequent handwashing by every member of the family with warm water and plenty of soap, and the use of a nail brush, is the best way of cutting down the mischief that hands may do. Care should be taken to get the suds way up under the nails particularly, because this is where germs like to lurk. Hands should always be thoroughly washed and dried on clean towels before preparing food, and before coming to the table. A "lick and a promise" is not enough to rid the hands of the invisible foes—and usually not enough to remove the visible dirt, either. It is thoroughness that counts.

HONOR MEMBER.

Pfc. Don L. Gale, who leaves for service Aug. 27, was honored at a party given Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edmonstone, Park avenue west road. Guests in attendance were members of Company F, Ohio State Guard. Singing and cards were the diversion after which refreshments were served.

Expert Tells Why It's Hard To Adopt Child

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Scores of childless couples write to this column asking if I can help them adopt a baby or an older child.

These people frequently enclose letters of recommendation from their clergymen or other trustworthy sources well acquainted with the would-be adoptive parents. There seems no question that the homes offered the children would be in every way desirable, but the letters suggest that there is great difficulty in inducing many institutions to release their charges under any circumstances

I have never accepted the responsibility of being a go-between in cases of adoption, in spite of the number of letters which have come to me It is my practice to refer the writers to social agencies in their cities And in passing, I wish to repeat that I also never introduce "Lonely Hearts." Other columnists may assume this grave responsibility but people unacquainted with each other never meet through Beatrice Fairfax

But I have just taken up the child adoption situation with a recognized authority, a woman holding an important government position, and here are some of the answers to questions many have asked me

The laws of a number of states require that the child remain in the adoptive home for six months or a year before a final adoption Agencies of recognized standing, even in states that have no such legal provisions, require such a trial period, and many of them advise that the final adoption be delayed until the child has been in the home for one or two years

Many would be foster-parents do not understand or refuse to accept this provision It is enforced to protect both foster-parent and child

There are for example, couples who desire to adopt a child to take the place of one they have lost Their expectation that the child will resemble their own in personality leads to unfortunate comparisons between the two children

Available sta[illegible] the majority of children offered for adoption are born out of wedlock Only slightly more than one-third are the children of married parents Too often the desire of an unmarried mother to keep the birth of a child a secret has resulted in early separation of the baby from the mother and the immediate placement in any available home without inquiry being made as to what the home can offer or without information being given concerning the child

Far too common, this authority stated, is the maternity home or the individual who will furnish an infant for adoption on payment of a sum to cover the cost of care given to the child Thus there is what could be called a black market" in babies

But no one should take a child into his home for adoption until, by careful mental tests or by a thorough knowledge of the child's family history, some assurance of the child's mentally ability can be given It is tragic for adoptive parents to find they have taken into their home a feeble-minded or defective child Institutions seek to prevent such tragedies

They also seek to prevent other tragedies, by refusing to place children with couples who confidential investigation has shown are likely to be temperamentally unfit to be good parents To them the mere possession of substantial means and comfortable home, isn't sufficient recommendation.

Wash Bathroom Tiles Often

When was the last time you washed down the tiled walls of the bathroom? If you haven't done it recently you are probably in for an embarrassing surprise because the tiles are likely to be covered with a film of dust that has been gummed firmly to the glazed surface by the action of the steaming bath water

The best way to remove this film is by the simple soap and water method. Fill a pail with good hot suds and wash the tiles with a large sponge or soft cloth When all the stain has been washed away, rinse the tiles with clear warm water, and wipe them dry with a clean soft cloth If the tiles are given this treatment once a month the cleansing can be done with little effort When left too long, the removing of the dirt requires the application of considerable elbow-grease.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I wish I knew the answer to that one," Dicky said "I can't imagine why she wanted Olina to go into her room, and I don't like puzzles"

'Of course," I ventured, "the members of the gang to which she belongs would like very much to get their hands on Olina, and Olga, too"

"Don't I know that?" he demanded "But how she would expect to pull anything here in broad daylight, I can't imagine. There's one thing I'm going to find out, though"

He went to the telephone, spoke briskly into it, listened for a reply, then hung up the receiver quickly and turned to me.

Didn't Check Out.

'She's gone from the hotel, but she hasn't checked out," he said "That means she's coming back Hurry! Get your keys ready'

I obeyed him, and opened the door of 1720, Ruth's room, while he dashed to the elevator, signaled it, and then spoke to the operator.

"If she comes back, he said when he returned, the operator will see to it that she doesn't get off at this floor until my man downstairs has a chance to telephone me So come on! We're going to do a plain and fancy bit of burgling"

I followed him into the room and looked around The bed was rumpled, where the "Wilderness Women" had taken her nap until she was disturbed by Milner's message bidding her search for me

On the dresser were strewn various cosmetics, and a hair brush, comb and clothes brush But a look into the dresser drawers disclosed that they were empty, and there was no clothing hanging in the clothes closet.

Standing away back in the closet, however was a modish overnight bag which Dicky hauled out into the sunlight, and examined closely

'Locked! he mourned, 'and no doubt she has the key with her But I can fix that!'

He stepped to the telephone and gave an order In less than five minutes, a house detective was in the room with us.

'Can you open this," Dicky asked, 'without breaking the lock and so that nobody will guess it's been opened?"

The detective held out his hand for the bag

"Let me look at it," he said non-committally, but in another minute added, 'Can do"

Taking a bunch of keys from his pocket, he selected one, opened the bag, snapped it shut again, and then opened it once more

"All you'll have to do when you've finished," he said, "is to snap it shut again If you're careful inside, nobody'll be the wiser"

I noticed that he had carefully refrained from looking inside the bag, and Dicky gave him a commendatory slap on the back

"You're the goods!" he said with meaning "Thanks a million and I'll be mighty careful."

"She'll raise hob with the hotel if she finds out it's been opened," the detective said, as a side glance at me betrayed his conviction that a chambermaid should not share the secret

'She won't find out,' Dicky said confidently, 'and if she does, she won't dare bring the subject up. And this woman"—he indicated me— is one of our own'

"Glad to hear that, the man replied. "Is there anything more you want of me?"

'Not now, Dicky told him. 'I may need you later"

'I'll be on deck," the detective replied, and then he went away

Dicky closed the door after him and grinned broadly at me

'I didn't see any use broadcasting the fact that you are my lawful wedded wife," he said "But of course, if you wish me to make an honest woman out of you—"

"I think I'll survive," I told him, laughing "But what do you expect to find in that bag?"

"Allah alone knows But I'm going to have a good look. Here, I'll spread it out to its fullest width, and you fix the position of the things in that memory of yours Then I'll be able to put them back properly And pull my handkerchief out of my pocket. There, thanks! Now we're ready.'

He lifted several articles out of the bag—a pair of bedroom slippers and a gossamerlike negligee—the usual thing for an overnight stay Memorizing their position in the bag I laid them out upon the bed and turned to find him scrutinizing the bottom of the bag.

'See anything queer about this?" he asked

"It's an expensive bag," I said an advertisement from the shop slowly, "and I seem to remember whose label this bears'

'Well, what about it?" my husband pressed me impatiently, as I paused.

"I'm not sure" I said, 'but I think you'll find there's a false bottom there"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

SKILL TO CUT LOSSES

Your skill is employed in various ways on different hands Basically however, it serves just two purposes. One is to put points on your score The other is to cut down, or minimize your losses on hands which are destined to produce scores for your opponents. Over any considerable stretch of time, one counts just as much as the other, for ultimately a point saved is a point gained

Instead of the spades which his partner had doubled, East opened the clubs which he had bid, leading the 3 North split the honors playing the Q and the A won Not seeing the 2 and reckoning East might have had a club doubleton, West tried for a ruff himself by leading the diamond singleton East took the Q with the A and returned the 3 West trumping with the 4 of hearts The club J came back, dummy winning with the K.

To prevent any more hostile ruffing North now scored the heart A and K This left him one trump in dummy He used it, after scoring the diamond K, to ruff the diamond 4 Next he ruffed the club 7 with the heart Q and led a spade This made him lose the last four tricks, so he was down two

North could have saved a trick—worth 300 points—by taking only one high trump after he was in with the club K Counting East for four trumps because of his double and West therefore for only two a single trump round would have exhausted West leaving dummy two trumps to ruff diamonds He could have ruffed one with the heart 9, after scoring the diamond K, could have reentered his hand with a high ruff of the club, then could have ruffed a second diamond with the heart 10 That would have been his sixth trick, and a seventh would have been sure with the have gone down only one on his heart Q Playing thus, he would doubled contract.

FARMERS ASKED TO PREPARE OWN BLANKS FOR AAA

Uncle Sam Has No Field Men To Check on Number of Acres In Production.

There won't be any AAA farm program field men calling on Richland county farmers this summer to find out how many acres of crops the farmers will harvest this year.

Its budget cut sharply by congressional action, the Triple-A is asking farmers to fill out their own compliance blanks and turn them in to the county headquarters on North Diamond street.

This procedure is expected to save time and money, making it unnecessary to send township field men through their communities to ask questions. Approximately 2,000 farm owners and operators will get blanks.

Compliance blanks are being mailed now, and all of them must be returned by Oct. 1 or the farmer won't be eligible to collect his government payments on wheat, corn, and soil building.

The Triple-A office has asked that farmers in 10 townships have their blanks returned Sept. 15. The deadline for the other townships is Oct. 1. The townships which come under the Sept 15 deadline are Bloominggrove, Butler, Cass, Franklin, Jackson, Jefferson, Madison, Mifflin, Monroe and Perry.

Questionnaires which farmers will receive seek information concerning the number of acres planted to each crop and the extent of the farmer's soil-building operations during the past year.

Under the new AAA regulations, farmers will be paid only for soil-building practices next year and there will be no government restrictions on any farm crops.

CLAIM PRIZES

Winners In Eggplant Competition Receive Awards.

Two Mansfield gardeners today had claimed the first two prizes offered by the Richland county Victory Garden committee for the earliest and best eggplant.

First prize of one dollar in war stamps went to Forrest Kimmel, 589 Garfield place, and the second prize ribbon was won by Virginia Kalis, 408 Springmill street. The winning garden produce is on display in the Martin Hardware company window.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills

SURVEY SHOWS DIVORCE RISE

OTTAWA— (U.P.)—The federal bureau of statistics has announced the results of a population study covering the decade 1931-1941.

It showed that 5.1 per cent of Canada's population in 1941 had been unmarried and that during the decade the number of divorced persons in the Dominion had doubled, increasing from 7,111 to 14,032. Also over the period the number of married persons had increased by 19.3 per cent. Whereas the number of single persons had risen by only 17 per cent.

British Columbia was the province with the highest percentage of married couples, 47.8. Ontario was second with 45.4, and Quebec last with 35.7.
